

Day Of Fear

By TED PULFORD

TIMMY WRIGHT is nine years old and he speaks with the irrefutable logic of the very young.

Here is his story of the first Christmas he remembers.

"I knew it was Christmas, because there was a tree and all, but that isn't why I remember it. I remember it because my Dad was drinking and falling all over and he hit my mother."

"The next day Mom and I and the baby got out of there and we've been here ever since and Dad never comes around any more."

With Christmas, 1961, a few days away Timmy Wright and his mother face a continuing crisis which began when the family went on city welfare two years ago and came to grips with physical want.

I asked him if he was looking forward to Christmas, and this is all he said:

"Why? I'm just afraid my Dad's going to come home."

This nine-year-old's childhood dream of a Christmas brimming with love and good things and the warm knowledge that his house is truly a home, has probably been shattered beyond all mending.

For him, just as for you, Christmas time is memory time—but his are the stuff of which nightmares are made.

While nothing can be done to change Timmy Wright's impressions of past Christmases, his Christmas to come is in your hands just as surely as is your own.

Timmy and his mother will be getting a 500 cheque this year—a cheque which will mean much in the way of good food and clothes and wanted gifts for them both.

And for Timmy, perhaps, the cheque will have an extra meaning—one that will bring some meaning into the Christmas seasons which lie ahead.

Think of him when you reach for your cheque book.

KEENLEYSIDE:

Power Flowing South for Years

—Hydro Chief

By TERRY HAMMOND

In his maiden policy speech since his appointment 2½ years ago as B.C. Hydro chairman, Dr. Hugh Keenleyside yesterday launched a scathing attack on Canada's no-power-export policy and challenged its existence.

Addressing a Nanaimo service club he said that the basic reason behind the controversial policy over which Premier Bennett has locked horns with the federal government is outdated and probably not even valid.

Fog Chokes London, Vanishes

LONDON (Reuters)—A thick winter fog blanketed London Friday but suddenly lifted in a surprising weather change.

The British Automobile Association describes it as "the most remarkable weather change we have ever known."

Within a half-hour reports of dense fog from 38 centres in central London changed to "all clear." The association called it a "fly-away fog."

India Prepared

Showdown In Goa Imminent?

BELGAUM, India (Reuters)—Indian forces stepped up border manoeuvres yesterday for what appeared to be an imminent showdown with Portugal over the Portuguese enclave of Goa.

The military preparations went ahead as U.S. Ambassador John Galbraith called on Indian Prime Minister Nehru in New Delhi in an attempt to head off the threatened war.

One report said Indian forces would invade Goa within 48 hours. Military observers believe an invasion would be a pushover for India which has 30,000 troops ready for action. They claimed the Indian force could overrun the 1,300-square-mile territory in a matter of days, if not hours.

Trail Blazes Safety

TRAIL (CP)—The motorists of this British Columbia West Kootenay city are driving with their headlights on today, marking the completion of seven highway - fatality - free years.

The record is the best for any North American city with more than 10,000 inhabitants.

Trail was congratulated by Prime Minister Diefenbaker, Premier Bennett and provincial Highways Minister Gagliardi.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the achievement is evidence of a fine regard in the community for traffic regulations and their purpose, the protection of human lives.

Elisabethville Capture Near for UN

ELISABETHVILLE (AP)—Relentlessly rolling up spectacular gains, troops of the United Nations fought their way toward the heart of Elisabethville Friday in a drive for control of this capital of secessionist Katanga province.

"This looks like the big UN push," said a longtime Belgian resident in comment on the climatic military phase. "The next few days will settle the fate of Katanga."

By nightfall the UN vanguard held positions only 350 yards from the city's centre.

Reports told of hundreds of wounded streaming to city hospitals and more than a score of dead.

The offensive was kicked off from the northern outskirts.

In Kitwe, Northern Rhodesia, Prime Minister Sir Roy Welensky, of the Rhodesian Federation, said President Moise Tshombe of Katanga "could come here without any question" if the province falls to the UN forces.

DENIED SUPPLIES

Welensky, a strong Tshombe supporter whose federation borders Katanga, denied his government is supplying arms to Tshombe forces.

Reuters reported that Tshombe issued a communique Friday night putting forth a proposal for a Congolese union along the lines of his long-standing proposal for a federation of the Congo's provinces.

Tshombe also offered to meet with Cyrille Adoula, premier of the Congo's central government, but only on neutral ground. He suggested one of the former French African states.

In the communique Tshombe proposed a Congolese customs and monetary union with common defence and foreign policies.

On the subject of a cease-fire, he said that should one be arranged it would have to be on the basis of the present positions held by Katanga and United Nations troops.

Earlier, Tshombe's finance minister said that the province would not accept instructions for an immediate ceasefire in Katanga.

Thant:

Truce Bids

Vetoed

UNITED NATIONS

(CP)—Acting Secretary-General Thant sent a blunt reply Friday night to two French-allied African countries which called for a cease-fire in the Congo's secessionist Katanga province.

Thant said the United Nations would stop its military action against Katanga troops only if guaranteed that it could carry out all of its Congo resolutions "to the satisfaction of the Security Council and the General Assembly."

UP TO CHIEF

The United States, faced with a cease-fire mediation request from President Moise Tshombe of Katanga, said earlier the question of a cessation of hostilities was one for the secretary-general to decide.

Thant received a cable from President Phibert Tsiranana of the Malagasy Republic saying: "It is essential to lay down arms and to allow the voice of the heart and of reason to be heard."

TRUCE PLEA

Abbe Fulbert Youlou, president of the Congo Republic (Brazzaville), which adjoins the Congo (Leopoldville), cabled a plea to Thant to issue instructions for an immediate ceasefire in Katanga.

Market Crisis 'Old History'

TORONTO (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker last night likened Britain's proposals to join the European Common Market to a situation that "threatened to destroy the economy of British North America 20 years before Confederation."

Recalling the situation more than a century ago, the prime minister said that, when Britain withdrew "what were then called 'colonial' but would now be called 'Commonwealth' preferences," Canada entered into a reciprocal trade agreement with the United States for 10 years and "a clamor followed for full commercial union, even annexation, with the United States."

"The answer to that challenge... was the creation of a new nation."

French Fail to Balk East-West Talks

Many Red Designs 'As Bad as Berlin'

PARIS (UPI)—The U.S. and Britain last night won backing from their NATO allies to resume diplomatic contacts with the Russians, but only after a final session in which France dissented strongly.

Delegates attending the last session in the North Atlantic council's three-day meeting said French Foreign Minister Couve de Murville found himself alone in his opposition to talks with Russia on Berlin.

HOPE EXPRESSED

The other 14 nations supported the efforts "in the hope a negotiated settlement could be achieved."

The closing communique skirted the disagreement but stressed the Russian threat to peace over Berlin. Western counter-measures and the theme that "world peace cannot indefinitely rest on a precarious balance of mutual terror."

RUSK REVIEW

Earlier, U.S. Secretary of State Rusk told the foreign, finance and defence ministers of the 15 nations Communist designs on the Middle East, Southeast Asia and Latin America may be as dangerous as the threat to Berlin.

He did not deal specifically with Berlin but presented the council a sweeping review of world conditions.

He said the U.S. is taking steps to liberalize its trade

Dox Sniffs Under Rocks For Peace Pipe Plans

VANCOUVER (CP)—Dox, an RCMP tracking dog, led police Friday night to a briefcase containing plans for the Westcoast Transmission Peace River pipeline project.

The briefcase had been stolen from engineer Peter Robinson's car. He said the plans were the only copies in existence and their loss would have delayed the project.

RCMP set Dox to work and she led them straight to the briefcase under a pile of rocks. The contents were intact.

Farm Union Asks 'Dues' from All

EDMONTON (CP)—Legislation that would compel all of Alberta was asked for in a resolution passed Friday at the FUA's annual convention.

This would be sufficient for the FUA's promotional and educational work, said the chairman of the compulsory membership committee.

Pigs May Slim Humans

LONDON (AP)—British scientists said Friday they may have discovered a new way to lose weight. They think they have found a new hormone in pigs which operates on the pituitary gland to burn up fat.

The government-backed National Research Council—convinced that the project looks promising—has contributed $11,200 toward further research.

The gland is reported to produce a substance which controls the rate at which food is burned up by the body. When extra doses of the hormone are injected into the body, the body burns up surplus fat as well as a normal food supply.

Biochemist Dr. Ivor Smith has headed the experiment. "The research is at a very early stage," he said in an interview, "and we are not trying to produce a magic slimming cure. But it is possible that we may eventually be able to help some people who, because of some physical abnormality, are very much overweight."

Scientists at London's Middlesex Hospital have been extracting small amounts of the hormone from pigs and injecting it into mice. They discovered that the mice lost 10 per cent of their original weight in two weeks.

Mink at $28 —No Takers

ATLANTA (UPI)—A $3,300 mink coat was offered for sale at $28 in a small pawnshop this week—without takers. The pawnbroker, not realizing the value of the coat, said he bought it for $18 from a boy and girl whom police charged with stealing it from the back of a truck.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

ONE of my pastimes is looking at big old houses that I would like to live in.

They usually are two-storey wooden houses with wide verandahs, badly in need of paint, standing among trees.

Behind their dark windows are numerous rooms—storage rooms for long-accumulated junk, playrooms where children can be shut away for two or three hours with their toys, large sitting-rooms for parties, extra bedrooms to put visitors in; upstairs rooms with a view and bookshelves, where a man can work or pretend to work, undisturbed by cooking smells or children.

The grounds are designed for playing hide-and-seek in, and the trees are perfectly adapted for the building of tree-forts.

These are well-built but rather eccentric old houses, and they may be purchased (I tell myself) for a modest price, because there isn't much demand for that kind of house nowadays.

I form a mental picture of the occupants, peering out from behind faded curtains. They are a couple in late middle age, somewhat vague and feckless and overwary by the house, which was left to them by old Uncle Jim.

They like the house, because it is haunted by the ghosts of their own likelihood, but it is too big for them. They want something more compact.

These people continue to stay there only out of loyalty to Uncle Jim, who wanted them to take care of the place. They feel guilty, because they have let moss grow on the roof and grass in the gutters. They have let the garden run wild.

Their chief wish—when they can gather courage to think about it—is that someone will offer to buy the house, a person who will be kind to it and restore it to some of its former glory.

When this kind of person comes along, they won't bother too much about money. The house will be his for a down payment of $4.98 and payments of $50 a month.

You can guess who I see in the role of the buyer. Good old me.

Day-dreams like this float through my head when I drive past the house.

Galvanized Tubs Not Healthy For Mixing Party Lemonade

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD.

Dear Doctor: We have a church fellowship that holds parties, picnics, etc., and we make lemonade in a galvanized tub. No one has been sick but me. Maybe I am allergic to metal poison.—F.M.

Galvanized tubs or pails are not proper for mixing lemonade or other such drinks and are not good for cooking food.

Acid foods or drinks may dissolve some of the zinc. A galvanized container is made of iron, but coated with zinc to prevent rust. It is excellent for that purpose. It is good for eating, troughs, scrub pails or such.

But when acid is present, then the zinc may begin to dissolve.

It may dissolve enough zinc to make some people feel ill. Generally, this is not a dangerous form of poisoning, but if it is sufficient to make some people feel ill, it's serious enough to avoid.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a woman 61 years of age and have had the menopause for 10 to 12 years. The past year I have had a showing of two or three times that resembled menstruation. I do not have any pain or discomfort.

Could this be possible at my age or do you think something else could be wrong?—Mrs. M.V.

Menopause doesn't go on and on and on. You have it, and then it's over. Occasional bleeding, or "spotting," after the menopause is over is an indication something is wrong. It may not be necessarily serious. But it deserves and should result in medical observation.

Dear Dr. Molner: Would you think it wise for a person with a faulty liver to drink one cup of hot cocoa made with skim milk each evening? And do you think this same cocoa could cause the joints of the fingers to swell.—Mrs. N.T.

No to both questions.

Note to Mrs. E.H.T.: There are many, many skin disorders, and I can't think of any more wasteful way of abusing one's nerves than to insist blindly some thickening or hardening or discoloring of the skin "must be cancer." After all, skin cancer can be treated so successfully there isn't the faintest reason for being coy about saying that it's cancer. Forget it, if that's what the dermatologist says.

Unfiltered Flavored Flip-Top Fog

LONDON — Two women report they are doing good business selling cans of "genuine London fog."

The women, recreation directors, at the U.S. Air Force base at nearby Ruislip, are Marge Binder and Babs McAgdon.

The girls have sold 8,000 cans of fog at 35 cents each, mostly to Americans on their way home from Europe.

Instructions regarding its use must be obeyed to obtain the full bouquet, they say. The cans must be opened in a closed room after dark with the lights off.

Miss Binder said the cans contain "genuine wild fog caught near Hyde Park."

SWANSEA, Wales — A woman's skeleton found last month in a disused mine near here was ruled to be the remains of a chorus girl, Mammie Stuart, murdered 42 years ago by her bigamist "husband," George Shotton, who died peacefully three years ago at the age of 78.

minister, Jean Baptiste, said Katanga had no intention of trying to obtain a cease-fire.

MOSTLY CIVILIANS

Hospital authorities said most of the Elisabethville casualties were civilians. They reported five Katangan soldiers had been killed and 117 wounded up to mid-afternoon.

Of the civilians, their accounting showed eight whites and 65 Negroes dead, 35 whites and 121 Negroes wounded.

Reporters saw a dead Negro child and a wounded child brought through town in a car taking them to hospital. They were in a street when a mortar bomb fell 10 yards away.

FIGHT PLEDGED

There were rumors of a cease-fire. But government sources indicated the Katangan army wanted to fight on and was prepared to continue the war even if Elisabethville should be taken.

gas, coal and wood, but will not permit the temporary sale of our perpetual resource of water power?"

He said the extreme example of "this eccentricity" would be the argument that it is appropriate to let the Columbia potential run at waste through the U.S. to the sea but "somehow immoral, unpatriotic or imprudent to control and sell that water to the United States at a most handsome profit."

NONE OPPOSED

The hydro chairman said that his repeated inquiries have failed to produce a Canadian economist or serious businessman familiar with the problem "who is opposed to export under contemporary conditions in B.C."

He said that recently at the federal government's own "Resources for Tomorrow" conference "when it was suggested to a seminar of 60 leading resource experts that there was no longer any informed opposition in Canada to export of power, there was no challenge to that statement."

CAUSE TO COMPLAIN

Switching to another tack, he said he does not personally believe stories to the effect that influential interests in Ontario and Quebec are protecting certain schemes of their own by preventing the federal government from allowing B.C. to use its own power to maximum value, but added:

"We have had cause before to complain of those Eastern Canadians whose economic eyesight cannot focus on any thing west of the Great Lakes—and that certainly cannot look over the ridge of the Rockies."

Weighing B.C.'s power development policy against that of Ottawa, the former U.N. chairman for technical assistance said "There can be no possible doubt as to which policy would bring the better results to B.C."

PERMANENT INJURY

"Refusal to allow the sale of downstream benefits... would do direct, gross and permanent injury to the economy of our province."

"Any unnecessary delay, any refusal of co-operation by any level of government, any inefficiency in planning or construction, will be a crime for which posterity can justly hold us in contempt."

ROBERT MURPHY
... put Europe first

'Way to Lose World'

U.S. Slapping Allies For Afro-Asian Vote

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former undersecretary of state Robert Murphy has bitterly criticized the Kennedy administration for backing Afro-Asian interests over those of Europe.

He said the policy had harmed the North Atlantic Treaty alliance.

Murphy gave his views in a letter, never before made public, to Adlai Stevenson, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, last March 21. This was a few days after the United States suddenly shifted long-standing policy and backed a UN resolution calling for investigation of Portuguese rule in Angola.

Europe remains the Soviet objective. If it is achieved, Africa will be a relatively easy conquest ... Murphy wrote.

CAVALIER MANNER

Murphy, now president of the American Council on NATO, expressed deep concern that in that "cavalier manner," ignored NATO consultations and acted "against our valued NATO allies and with the Soviet Union."

He charged that the United States, treating NATO-member Portugal in a "cavalier manner," ignored NATO consultations and acted "against our valued NATO allies and with the Soviet Union."

He warned that what he called a "hasty action" had done harm to the NATO alliance.

Murphy also said Russia has tricked the United States into competing with it in Africa

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The Soviet Union's bid to seat Red China in the United Nations was defeated in the General Assembly Friday by a margin that surprised many observers.

The assembly voted 36 to 48 with 20 abstentions against the Soviet resolution that would have replaced Chinese Nationalists with Chinese Communists in all UN organs.

Ending an historic debate, the vote was a decided victory for the United States, which has led the fight against Red China's membership.

BACKED BY BRITAIN

Britain, which recognizes the Peking government, supported the Russian resolution but it was opposed by Canada, France and most Western nations.

In previous years, the U.S. kept the question off the assembly's agenda by putting through yearly postponement resolutions — with victory margins steadily shrinking.

FAVORED TALK

Although voting against the Russian resolution, Canada said in debate that it favored the open discussion. It did not favor any solution of the Chinese problem that might be reached at the expense of Formosa.

Some diplomats and many observers said they had expected the vote for seating Red China would be stronger.

Shipments of peat moss by Canadian producers in 1959 amounted to 181,100 tons, 250 per cent more than the 1950 tonnage.

Bus Driver Faces Manslaughter Charge

Debre Survives Censure

PARIS (UPI) — Premier Michel Debre's Gaullist government scored a major victory in the National Assembly early today when it defeated an opposition censure motion.

The government majority stood firm to throw out the Socialist-Radical censure attempt.

Only 199 deputies voted to censure the government—well short of the 276 minimum required to topple the premier. It was the lower house's last gesture before going into a four-month winter recess which, under the terms of President Charles de Gaulle's constitution, lasts until April 24.

The sometimes stormy debate on the government's "general policy" carried the final session past its scheduled Friday midnight deadline. Those who voted against the government were the leftist opposition and the extreme rightists who oppose de Gaulle's drive to negotiate Algerian independence with the Moslem rebels.

Threat to the West

IT IS INCREDIBLE that through its first major military action designed to bring unity to The Congo the United Nations has succeeded in dividing the West.

This bewildering development was initially brought to world notice earlier this month when Dr. Conor O'Brien resigned as United Nations chief of civil administration in Katanga in protest against the British government's policy in The Congo.

This policy, Dr. O'Brien alleges, is one deliberately directed toward sabotaging the United Nations operations in Katanga province. Later he broadened his charges to embrace the governments of France and Belgium. Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, Rhodesian Prime Minister Sir Roy Welensky, Lord Beaverbrook of "the gutter press," Lord Salisbury, Lord Lansdowne and British industrialist Captain Charles Waterhouse.

Today, though the physical problem of Katanga may soon be resolved by the positive action of the UN force, the clouds of international intrigue still pall the scene—poisonous clouds which threaten first to engulf and then to separate the major members of the Western Alliance.

Already Britain has shown her divergence with the UN Katanga policy by calling for an immediate cease fire, only to have it rejected by Acting Secretary-General U Thant.

By her continued opposition to the United Nations invasion of Katanga, Britain has gained the support of France, Belgium and Rhodesia, but has also roused the ire of the United States, India and the majority of Commonwealth countries who support the United Nations move.

Thus, dangerously, it is revealed to the world and to the Communist nations in particular that the national policies of the major Western powers are locked in deadly conflict over Katanga.

Of all the nations decriing the use of UN force to bring the recalcitrant Congo province into line, only one—Rhodesia—appears to have a truly logical and legitimate interest in the matter. Bordering, as it does, on Katanga province, the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland fears for the security of its own boundaries.

Having lived in peace with the present Katanga regime, Sir Roy Welensky is undoubtedly unwilling to see the province taken over by the Congolese Central Government—whose reputation in controlling its unruly troops is none too savory.

Further to this he is worried that his rail outlet to the sea (through Katanga province, the Southern Congo and Angola to Lobito Bay) may be cut. The suggestion that Rhodesia has any financial interest in the great Katanga mining complex of Union Miniere is ridiculous. Union Miniere is, in fact, Rhodesia's greatest rival in copper exports and if it ceased production it would reflect beneficially to Rhodesia's economy.

France's attitude, too, is understandable. She has never supported, morally or financially, the UN Congo operation. General de Gaulle has made it clear that he opposes such action by the United Nations because it could open the way to a similar intervention in French North Africa.

Nor is it difficult to reason Belgium's view of seeing herself as the whipping boy for everything that has gone wrong in The Congo after she granted it full independence.

However, no such clear cut reasons emerge in an analysis of British policy in Katanga. On the one hand she supports the United Nations Congo force to the amount of nearly three-quarters of a million dollars a week, while on the other her government objects to its military operation.

Officially the British government backs the idea of a united Congo, but demands that this be brought about through negotiation rather than force.

In answer to this the United Nations reports that Katanga president Tshombe has consistently refused to meet with the Central Congolese government even to the United Nations present to conciliate. Tshombe denies this by pointing out that when he last visited Leopoldville to open talks with The Congo leaders he was beaten and imprisoned. He also states that Premier Adoula has rejected his suggestion for a meeting on neutral ground.

Though in both these protestations Tshombe is right, they hardly explain the course Britain has adopted.

It has been suggested that Britain's attitude may stem from her anxiety to protect the not inconsiderable British holdings in Union Miniere. However, this argument falls away through the fact that British investment in other Congo provinces far exceed that in Katanga.

It should also be mentioned that nationals of countries other than Britain have large interests in Union Miniere, including those of America, Belgium and South Africa.

Thus do the dense clouds of intrigue, international jealousies, private interests, and conflicting national policies spread over the battlefield of Katanga, looming ever larger as a threat to unity of the Western world.

They are clouds that only the West itself can dispel.

They Serve Us Well

THIS IS THE season of the year when one government department becomes the most popular of all—the post office. On its skill and promptitude depends the receipt in time for Christmas of the gifts and greetings that bring so much happiness. And its efficiency, has to make up for the late posting of laggard citizens.

In Victoria alone some 800,000 cards a day are handled, which added to the volume of parcels and packages of all shapes and sizes represents a colossal task to be done in a hurry.

Actually at any time the receipt, sorting, dispatch and delivery of mail is a marvelous business; probably no other operation is conducted all the year through with such celerity or with errors so few they are minimal. We have grown to take the mail service for granted but it is a continuing boon to society.

It is appropriate therefore to voice a word of thanks to the local post office staffs, at this moment in the midst of a feverish rush which they must contain with cool heads. Indoor and outdoor workers alike join forces to get the Christmas mail through at all costs, and we should be grateful.

Kennedy-Macmillan Meeting

Still the Chief Ally

PRESIDENT KENNEDY still regards Britain as America's chief ally. That is how people here explain the sudden announcement Kennedy-Macmillan meeting to be held in Bermuda on Dec. 21 and 22.

Not that Mr. Kennedy particularly admires British policies. Indeed, there are probably few countries whose international conduct and alleged softness provoke such articulate exasperation in and around the White House. The fact remains that the president, despite the colossal load of foreign and domestic business, cares enough about this particular ally to fly to British territory and spend two days alone with the prime minister.

This personal encounter—the fourth since Mr. Kennedy's election—is only part of the story; telephonic conversations between the two leaders since the Berlin crisis have been far more frequent than the American public is allowed to know.

When Mr. Kennedy was elected it was frequently said that this would be the end of the special Anglo-American partnership. Britain was no longer a world power and it was felt that British preeminence was only a relic of past glories protracted owing to Churchill's great prestige or Eisenhower's wartime London links. Mr. Kennedy, they said, belonged to a new generation and had already expressed himself in vigorously anti-colonialist terms.

Insufficient attention was perhaps paid to the human element. Some members of the Kennedy clan had married British; the president himself spent some formative years in London as the son of the American ambassador and had a participation at the London School of Economics.

By his own choice he surrounded himself with other British-educated Americans, notably the secretary of state and former Rhodes Scholar, Dean Rusk. Today the only foreigner among his immediate circle of personal friends is Sir David Ormsby Gore, British ambassador to Washington.

The new administration has, therefore, a strong pro-British, as well as anti-colonialist, bias which awkwardly coexist.

After talking office, Mr. Kennedy's anti-colonialist ideology expressed itself in efforts to revise the United Nations and depended on easing the cold war and working more closely with the neutrals. During the last few months, particularly since the erection of the Berlin Wall and Soviet nuclear test, Mr. Kennedy has swung towards the view that Communism is irrevocably expansionist and the military threat paramount. Inevitably the United Nations has taken second place and the emphasis has shifted back towards military alliances, particularly the Atlantic Community.

Paradoxically, although the revived cold war has boosted Britain's value to America and lessened Mr. Kennedy's preoccupation with anti-colonialism and neutralists, yet at the same time, it has increased instead of diminishing, Anglo-American differences.

The British government also certainly runs NATO as more vital than the United Nations, but it takes far less a catastrophic view of the Communist challenge. Above all, it refuses to consider the possibilities of war to the same extent as do the Americans.

There will be no dispute between the two leaders over Berlin and Germany. Mr. Macmillan has already accepted the American line and waived his earlier ideas on demilitarizing Central Europe. But on Southeast Asia differences are still acute. Mr. Kennedy by now feels that the Americans must go all the way—including, if necessary, direct military action—to keep the Communists out of South Vietnam.

They are working on what is known as the "domino theory"—the belief that if Southeast Asia goes, all the other countries of Southeast Asia will topple with the rest of Asia, the Middle East, Africa, and even Europe following.

In the British view, the Sino-Soviet bloc, far from following a concerted plan for world domination, are divided among themselves and only sporadically when and where they can. The barriers should, therefore, be political rather than military. That is why, at Bermuda, President Kennedy, presenting himself as a young knight in shining armor ready to save the world from the Communist dragon, will find himself confronted by the phlegmatic and unflappable prime minister who doesn't believe in dragons. They will speak English to each other, of course, but will it be the same language?

The Packer

Non-Blushers

By GREGORY CLARK

DURING the present Christmas rush, when I ride in buses, and strictly leave my car at home, along with my vacuum cleaner, my lawn mower and other equally clumsy modern appurtenances, I have seen three persons board the bus by the rear exit door, without paying their fares.

True, there were, on each occasion, crowds struggling to enter the proper front entrance. True, also, that the back of the bus was much less jammed than the front half. True, also, that in each case the driver could not see the rear exit on account of the crowd, and his preoccupation with the boarding passengers. But I regret to inform you that all three of the trespassers were women. And I further regret to say they were not poor women, or elderly women who might be forgiven by God if not by men for their transgressions.

They were in each instance the type of trim, smart, level-headed business women you encounter uptown and downtown in command of whatever situation you find them in, working in shops, offices.

The sort who never knew, even when they were young, what it is to blush.

Report From Ottawa

A Painful Discovery

By ARTHUR BLAKELY

MEMBERS of Parliament who've been pressing for an increase in parliamentary pay believe that Prime Minister Diefenbaker—who has opposed the move—will soon get the point. Many of Parliament's rookies, having made the painful discovery that mighty little of that $100,000 a year take-home pay have been talking of abandoning federal politics.

A recent tabulation showed that more than 20, to date say they won't be running again. There will be others. Some will change their minds at the last moment. Some always do. But most candidates won't be as easy to find as they have been in the past.

EXPANSION: Report is that responsibility for the Industrial Development Bank may soon be shifted from the finance department to trade and commerce. Behind the proposal is a feeling that the IDB has been overconcerned in its operations, that it should make a more aggressive contribution to industrial expansion.

CONTRABAND: Canadian customs authorities report that Henry Miller's controversial "Tropic of Cancer" has moved up quite a few notches on the list of items Canadians are likely to try to smuggle into the country. As long as France was the chief source of Miller's works, traffic in them was small. But now that "Tropic of Cancer" can be picked up in the U.S. without difficulty, the situation has changed.

An unsigned notice on the student notice board at Ottawa's Carleton University contained an offer to sell copies of Cancer at $2 per item. As soon as a shipment arrived, suggesting strongly that some unidentified undergraduate hopes to capitalize on the fact that the demand exceeds the available supply.

LINGUISTICS: Dr. Amass Aroutounian, 59-year-old Armenian who serves as Russian ambassador to Canada, skirted the fringe of the Canadian controversy concerning Quebec's treatment inside Confederation at his recent press conference. Replying to suggestions that the Soviet Union was guilty of the worst kind of colonialism, Dr. Aroutounian noted casually that Russian citizens of 15 different national origins had been elected to the Supreme Soviet. "And we recognize the equality of 15 different languages."

French Economy Threatened

Dangerous 'Grandeur'

By WILLIAM MILLINSHIP, from Paris

AS it moves cautiously towards a final showdown with the army and European settlers in Algeria, the French government has come under attack from all sides over its economic and financial policy.

To outsiders this may seem strange. Other countries still look admiringly at the French "economic miracle" worked by the de Gaulle government at the end of 1958. Britain is trying to introduce an economic planning body on French lines. The French recovery has increased the attractiveness of the European Common Market. Yet, in France itself, there are signs of a return to inflation which crippled the finances of the Fourth Republic.

Civil servants and employees of nationalized industries are clamoring for more pay, as the gap between their wages and those paid by private industry continues to widen. A 24-hour warning strike by public transport, gas, and electricity workers paralysed the country. Unions demanded wage increases of between seven per cent and 12 per cent. The government offered 2.5 per cent and General de Gaulle last week ordered his prime minister, M. Michel Debre, to make it clear that this was the last word.

The premier, in his first press conference, also warned that there was a limit to public workers' right to strike.

"At certain times," he said, "national interest in its highest sense must come before the momentary demands of this or that category of civil servants." It was for the government to decide when that time had come. M. Debre was evidently warning the unions that the government would, if necessary, use mobilization orders to break strikes. Threats of this kind however have recently had the opposite of the desired effect—the unions have ordered their men out in defence of their right to strike.

The government, however, is seeking to avoid a trial of strength. M. Debre also tried persuasion, explaining the difficulties and promising that wages would keep pace with the general increase in productivity.

But he saw no possibility of equal pay for civil servants and the employees of private industry.

Persuasion has already failed with private employees. M. Debre wrote to them earlier this year urging them to limit wage increases to four per cent. In fact, the increases in many sectors were considerably greater, as employers fought for the available labor. Last week, he spoke of more intensive training courses to produce skilled workers in short supply, and of letting in more foreign labor. He had no immediate answer to inflationary wage increases in private industry.

In the meantime, price increases have almost nullified the advantages of the 17 per cent devaluation of the franc carried out in December, 1958. Since then retail prices have increased by 13 per cent in France, as compared with between five per cent and six per cent in Britain and West Germany. France's exports remain buoyant and the franc is still strong, but two of the men most closely associated with the 1958 "miracle" are now attacking the government.

M. Jacques Rueff, who helped plan the recovery program, said recently that the government handling of credit was largely responsible for the present inflation. Instead of attracting money into long-term investments, high rates of interest were luring it into inflationary short-term operations.

M. Antoine Pinay, who, as General de Gaulle's finance minister, staked his high personal reputation on the recovery plan now accuses the government of abandoning his policy. The key to the plan, he said, was the reduction of prices and some taxes. Now prices were rising and economic subsidies had been reintroduced.

This was M. Pinay's first public assault on the government, since he resigned in January, 1960. It was important, because many people believe that he may well be the next president of France. He is the incarnation of the French little man, while General de Gaulle personifies French grandeur.

Since he resigned, M. Pinay has remained in the background, running his tanning business at St. Chamond, a little town in Central France, where he has been mayor for 30 years. His retirement is similar in some ways to General de Gaulle's withdrawal from power after the last war. The general waited for France to turn to him in face of another national disaster. Mr. Pinay expects to be called to the more modest job of saving the country a third time from inflation. He succeeded once as prime minister in 1952 and a second time in 1958.

He has now broken his two-year silence to accuse the government of sacrificing stability to grandeur. He criticized "unproductive investments," such as the transatlantic liner "France," a nuclear submarine, and the isotope separation plant which will provide France with the enriched uranium needed for H-bomb production, but which is costing far more than originally expected.

M. Pinay said it would be preferable to spend the money providing running water for the French rural families who still relied on wells.

M. Pinay, however, did not resign over economic and financial policy. There was a personal conflict between the authoritative de Gaulle and the stubborn little minister. They also disagreed over foreign policy—especially NATO—a field which the General's other ministers recognized as his personal concern.

General de Gaulle has lately shown himself aware of his advancing age (he is 71) and frequently refers to it in public. M. Pinay is 70 this month, but nevertheless is happily biding his time. Perhaps he thinks he will not have long to wait. His opportunity will come, if and when de Gaulle ends the Algerian war. The fact that signs of inflation coincide with the approaching climax in Algeria suits the mayor of St. Chamond.

In Hungary

Changes in Policy

By I. JAMES LEDERER, from London

IMPORTANT changes in the Hungarian government's policy towards the West are indicated by two major moves announced in Budapest.

Five years after the crushing of the 1956 Hungarian revolt, Mr. Janos Kadar, the Hungarian premier, who recently returned to Budapest after an extended visit to Moscow, appears to be making a determined bid to restore his government's respectability in the West with a special effort to obtain full recognition by the United States. Clearly, under Moscow influence, Mr. Kadar is endeavoring to keep in step with the new trend in East-West relations.

The invitation is U Thant, acting secretary-general of the United Nations, to visit Hungary to see conditions for himself, seeks to dispel Western misgivings that repressor is still carried on in Hungary. It remains to be seen whether this invitation to U Thant is different from that which the Hungarians extended to the late Mr. Dag Hammarskjold last year; an invitation he felt unable to accept as the offer was made to him as a private individual.

Hungary has hitherto refused to accept a UN resolution to allow Sir Leslie Munro, the UN special representative on Hungary, to investigate conditions on the spot. Mr. Kadar has claimed that this would constitute interference in Hungary's internal affairs.

It may well be that Mr. Kadar, feeling more confident because of the improved economic situation during the past year, has invited U Thant in his official capacity. This would be a major concession and could lead to the dropping of the Hungarian question from the UN agenda.

There are also reliable reports that the Hungarian government has made an offer to Washington to pardon Cardinal Jozsef Mindszenty, the last Prime Minister of Hungary, who, on the morning of November 4, 1956, when the Soviet troops returned to Budapest to crush the rising, found sanctuary in the United States Legation.

Cardinal Mindszenty has remained at the legation ever since and his position has been a thorn in Hungarian-American relations. The Hungarians have never demanded the extradition of the 70-year-old cardinal, who was released from prison in the first hours of the revolt by the "Freedom fighters." He had been sentenced in 1949 to life imprisonment for conspiring to overthrow the Communist regime.

The United States government has not only refused to extradite the cardinal but has also refused to recognize the Kadar regime. The last American minister left Budapest shortly after the revolt was defeated and no new minister has since been appointed. Premier Kadar's attempt to settle this problem with the United States administration headed by a Roman Catholic is urgent not only for the improving of Hungary's relations with America, but in view of the cardinal's deteriorating health, to eliminate a factor which might lead to internal unrest.

Although the cardinal has the best possible medical attention at the American legation, and is reported to be in good mental health, he is cut off from contact with his own people. The Americans strictly observe the rules of sanctuary, and he has no contact with Hungarians at all; even his meals are served by Americans. His apartment windows do not look out over Budapest, but on an inner courtyard. His only daily exercise is a stroll in the legation premises.

The Hungarian offer of amnesty to the cardinal does not mean that when he leaves the legation he will be a free citizen and can remain in Hungary. Mr. Kadar will probably insist that he should leave the country and never return. People who have spoken to Cardinal Mindszenty say that he will not agree to this; that he prefers to die in Hungary, even if this means technically on American territory.

For Red China

Japanese Challenge

By EDWARD NEILAN, from Tokyo

INCREASED competition between Japan and Communist China for influence in Southeast Asia, is predicted by officials at the Japanese foreign office.

These officials toured the area recently with Prime Minister Ikeda and Foreign Minister Jozaburo Koike. They said Japan-Communist China relations will no longer be merely a matter concerning the two countries.

The expression confirmed earlier indications that Japan was ready to assume more responsibility in Asian economic and diplomatic matters. The United States had encouraged this Japanese policy initiative when Secretary of State Dean Rusk visited Tokyo recently. A possible stumbling block is increased U.S. emphasis on "Buy American" plans which have roused protests from Japanese businessmen.

The Japanese foreign office believes that stepped up economic assistance pledged by Ikeda during his recent visit to Pakistan, India, Burma and Thailand would inevitably result in a collision of interests with Red China. A head-on economic clash is most likely in Burma.

With a Chinese population of about 400,000 already in Burma, Peking is ready to support Burma's new four-year development plan. It recently offered Burma an $80,000,000 interest-free loan.

The Japanese officials pointed out that Red China maintains a huge embassy staff exceeding 200 persons in Rangoon and enjoys propaganda advantages afforded by pro-Peking newspapers.

The Japanese government has yet to decide how it may best assist Burma's development. Burma's draft four-year plan is being studied here in discovery areas in which Japanese assistance would be most effective.

There is a strong possibility that Japan and Red China would construct competing cotton plants. It would mark the first time Japan and Communist China have claimed directly on the economic front.

Bail Rejected For Radicals

NELSON (C.P.) Eight more members of the Sons of Freedom Doukhobor sect were committed for trial Friday on charges connected with acts of terrorism in the Kootenays bringing to 28 the number of Freedomites committed in two days.

Tim Jmaeff and Paul Zarubin were committed on charges of setting a bomb which wrecked the interior of the RCMP headquarters here Jan. 26, 1960.

Six sect members, including three members of the fraternal council, were committed earlier on arson conspiracy charges.

28 'Sons' Face Trial

They were fraternal council members Bill Stupnikoff, William Kozmin and Pete Markin and sect members Pete Ostrikoff, Sid Salukin and Alex Baba-koff. The council is the sect's governing body.

FOUR MORE A total of 28 Freedomites have been committed for trial as a result of recent mass arrests by RCMP. Magistrate William Evans next week will hold preliminary hearings for at least four more Freedomites.

One accused, Bill Markin, was acquitted when Magistrate Evans found there was no evidence to support the conspiracy charge.

BAIL REFUSED Magistrate Evans rejected applications to allow bail for those committed pending their trial at the B.C. Supreme Court spring assizes.

He said probability of the accused appearing on trial if bail were granted is only one factor to be considered. There also are "other circumstances."

"It is proper to consider the nature of the offence with which a person is charged, its punishment, the strength of the evidence against the accused."

VERY SERIOUS "The charges are very serious. The evidence given was strong and substantial to say the least."

"Their character and standing in the community leaves much to be desired. Their conduct in court has been contemptuous. Our laws appear to have little meaning to them and their kind."

Orange Jackets Urged on Hunt

DUNCAN—Cowichan Fish and Game Association is spearheading a campaign for brighter-colored clothes for hunters to reduce shooting accidents, officials of the group said yesterday.

The association is trying to win support from other game clubs in a bid to ask the provincial government for legislation. This would make the new type of orange fluorescent jackets mandatory for B.C. hunters.

Annual turkey shoot sponsored by the Cowichan Fish and Game Association will take place today and Sunday at the gravel pit on Fairbridge Road from 10 a.m. until dusk.

One of the highlights will be a shotgun competition for non-shooters. Signs on the Trans-Canada Highway south of Duncan will show the way to the shooting area.

The association's annual banquet was set for Feb. 2.

Swan Case Remanded

ALBERNI—Hunter Maurice Gratton, charged with killing a swan, pleaded not guilty in Alberni court Thursday and was remanded until Dec. 21 for trial.

He pleaded guilty to another charge of hunting migratory birds from a boat and was fined $20.

Supreme Court Rules

Widow to Get Estate Despite Fatal Act

OTTAWA (C.P.)—The Supreme Court of Canada ruled yesterday that a woman whose insanity led to the death of her husband in a fire is entitled to his estate.

The court made the ruling in a judgment granting an appeal against a decision of the B.C. Appeal Court.

John Alfred Nordstrom died in a fire that destroyed his Lulu Island, B.C., home May 30, 1956.

A coroner's jury found that Nordstrom had been slain and the Crown charged that the fire was started by his wife, Kathleen M. Nordstrom. Mrs. Nordstrom was declared insane and now is a patient at the provincial mental hospital at Essondale, B.C.

The Supreme Court rejected an action by the province of British Columbia to collect $7,074 in provincial sales tax on gas pipe imported by West-coast Transmission Co. in 1957 and 1958.

The court upheld decisions of the B.C. Supreme and Appeal Courts stating that the tax was assessed wrongly under the Social Service Tax Act.

An appeal involving the legality of part of the B.C. Workmen's Compensation Act was dismissed in a judgment issued by the Supreme Court of Canada.

BCE Office Staff Set For Contract News

Possible working agreement changes will likely be defined when the B.C. Electric Office Employees Association begins bargaining next week with the provincial government.

Changes will become effective Jan. 1, the day the present contract expires.

1,800 AFFECTED The 1961 contract, which affects some 1,800 B.C. Electric office employees—including 150 on Vancouver Island—was negotiated while the company was privately owned.

Although the provincial government has assured the union its status would be respected, the Labor Relations Board has found that, under the terms of the Power Act, Labor Relations Act and Interpretation Act, the government is not bound by any such contract.

AGREEMENT ONLY The only relationship possible between the company—which is now the government—and the union, would be by gentlemen's agreement.

First bargaining session is set for Wednesday, a union spokesman said yesterday.

Indians Willing to Trade For New Village Site

TERRACE (C.P.)—Nasas River Indians, devastated by flood two months ago, have decided to relocate their northern village of Aiyansh and are preparing toicker with the B.C. government for other land.

Jack Macfarland, superintendent of Indian affairs here, and B. C. Boys, B.C. Indian affairs commissioner, visited the village on the Nasas River near B.C.'s border with the Yukon and Alaska, to investigate reports of hardship.

Although the floods had washed away the homes of 100 persons, the villagers managed a gay banquet for the visiting officials. Mr. Macfarland said Friday.

MOST IMPRESSED "The commissioner was most impressed."

The two officials talked with the village council and the whole Indian band Thursday.

Mr. Macfarland said methods and means of obtaining a new site, plans for surveying the land, availability of water and town plots were among the matters discussed.

Commissioner Boys told the Indians the B.C. government

Island Holly Growers Gain New Foothold Back East

Vancouver Island holly growers have succeeded in gaining a new foothold on the eastern Canadian market this year.

After three years of stiff competition from United States growers, Vancouver Island Holly Growers' Co-operative will ship 50 tons of holly to eastern markets.

REASON WHY

One grower said last night he believes the quality of Vancouver Island holly is responsible for the new gain in the east.

"It is the superior quality of the holly and the attractive package that has helped us regain the Canadian market," said David Philbrick, secretary-manager of the growers' co-op.

He said the 65-member co-op, which constitutes the majority of Vancouver Island holly growers, expects a return of $50,000 from sales.

"Our sales stretch as far east as the Maritimes and as far north as Yellowknife, but the bulk of our business is in Ontario and Quebec," Mr. Philbrick said.

GROWING, SELLING

"We have had a good growing year and a good selling year," he said.

He said holly could be purchased in four-ounce polyethylene bags all the way up to 10-pound boxes.

Eastern shipments began Dec. 1 and will be completed by the coming weekend.

Christmas In Song For Navy

A social hour in the Nelles Block cafeteria will complete the evening.

Jaycees Extend Light Deadline

Number of entries for the Junior Chamber of Commerce Christmas home lighting contest reached 53 last night.

The lighting committee has decided to extend the deadline for entries until 6 p.m. Tuesday to encourage more contestants.

HOPING TO TOP

Lighting committee chairman Maynard Savary said a number of contestants last year were still to be heard from.

"We are hoping to top last year's mark (70)," he said.

To prevent entries getting bogged down in the last-minute Christmas mail rush a box will be left outside the Jaycee office at 1217 Douglas. Entries can be dropped there after the weekend.

Prizes will be given for decorated houses, decorated windows or doors, best depiction of the Christmas message and a group display of three or more adjacent homes.

High School Burglar Sent to Jail

A 19-year-old Colwood youth charged with the $2,000 burglary of Belmont High School was sentenced to one year definite and one year indefinite when he appeared in Colwood provincial police court yesterday.

Theodore Robert Forsey, 210 Lagoon Road, pleaded guilty. Another man arrested in Vancouver in connection with the offence was given a prison term for possession of stolen property.

Boy Didn't 'Dart' Into Car's Path

Defence arguments that a five-year-old boy was injured because he "darted" in front of a moving car at Oak Bay Avenue and Foul Bay Road on Dec. 2 were contradicted by an eyewitness in Oak Bay traffic court yesterday.

Magistrate William Ostler said testimony of one witness indicated that Gordon Gillis, 1056 Foul Bay Road, was walking slowly within the marked crosswalk when he was struck by the car driven by Mrs. Elinor Dora Ponsford, 2506 Wootton Crescent.

The magistrate found Mrs. Ponsford guilty of the charge of careless driving and fined her $40. He allowed the woman, a practical nurse, to keep her licence provided she drives her car for business purposes only for two months.

'Heart' Helped Karina

As a team of seven doctors worked over six-week-old Victoria baby Karina Marie Willard, the infant's heart action was replaced by an artificial unit for half an hour.

Dr. Philip Ashmore of Vancouver, who directed the 3½-hour operation designed to correct malformed veins near the baby's heart, said he was highly pleased with results.

He said the eight-pound Willard baby was the smallest patient to receive assistance of an artificial heart in the history of the hospital.

The baby's condition is described as satisfactory even though she was originally given only a one-in-five chance.

Maris 'Athlete of Year'

Roger Maris, whose pursuit of Babe Ruth's home run record was followed by millions of fans all over the world, yesterday was named the Associated Press athlete of 1961.

The 27-year-old New York Yankees slugger was an overwhelming choice in balloting by 253 sportswriters and broadcasters. Named on 160 first-place ballots, he led the over-all voting with 353 points.

Second was George Battersby, great halfback, Paul Hornung with 108 points, Milwaukee Braves left-handed Warren Spahn, 85, Ernie Davis, Syracuse University halfback, 79, and Mickey Mantle of the Yankees, 77.

Maris is the first baseball player to win the award since Ted Williams took it in 1957. Last year's winner was death-lion champion Rafe Johnson.

Maris hit 61 home runs over a 162-game schedule compared to Ruth's 60 in a 154-game schedule. Maris hit 50 homers in his first 154 games.

Normally reticent and unemotional, Maris was deeply moved yesterday in New York when informed he had been named winner of the AP award.

"It's got to mean a lot when they rank you ahead of every athlete in the world," he said. "There are some mighty good ones on that list."

INGE MAR JOHANSSON

said last night he may cover box in the United States again, following a U.S. federal court judgment that he owes the United States $1,000,000 in back taxes. Ingemar will first talk to his lawyers, but it seems as sure as he will not return to the U.S. Mean-while, notices being held for him by various promoters and sports groups are being seized by the government. Henry Hank scored a unanimous 10-round decision over Chic Calderwood in their middleweight bout last night in New York. Frank Thomas of Cincinnati Reds led the National League in slugging for the second straight year, collecting 333 total bases in 545 times at bat for a .311 percentage.

CHARLES COMISKEY II

sold his 45 per cent of Chicago White Sox holdings to an 11-man syndicate yesterday for an estimated $3,500,000, leaving the club without a Comiskey as an owner for the first time in 60 years. ANDY BATHGATE holds a five point edge over Montreal's Claude Provost in the National Hockey League scoring race. The New York winger has 37 points on 11 goals and 26 assists. William "Dumpty" Hoy, oldest former major league ball player, died yesterday at the age of 98. He played from 1887 to 1902 with Washington Senators, Cincinnati Reds and Chicago White Sox. Moscow radio has branded British runner Gordon Pirie "a bad sport and muddlinger" for saying Vladimir Kuts used drugs to win at the 1956 Melbourne Olympics.

AUSTRALIA has announced its Davis Cup tennis team for the challenge round against Italy Dec. 26-28. On it will be Rod Laver, Roy Emerson, Neale Fraser and Fred Stolle. Dodgers Send Charlie Neal To New York

A last-minute rush to beat last night's deadline for inter-league trades in the major baseball leagues produced a few deals, only one involving a first-line star.

In what was a bit of a surprise, the Los Angeles Dodgers disposed of Charlie Neal, their regular second baseman, and accepted the bulk of the payment from New York Mets in cash.

Going to the Dodgers perhaps the richest club in the majors, was $100,000 in cash along with Lee Walls, an outfielder who sometimes plays in the infield. The Mets, one of two new clubs in the National League, will also receive a rookie as yet unnamed.

SURPLUS CATCHER

New York Yankees didn't get too much for Jesse Gonder, a promising colored catcher who was surplus material to Milwaukee farm team in Van- the world champions, who already have Elston Howard, Johnny Blanchard and Yogi Berra to do their receiving. Gonder went to the Cincinnati Reds in exchange for Marshall Bridges, a 30-year-old southpaw relief pitcher. Both players spent most of last season in the International League.

With Gonder expected to become at least a semi-regular, the Reds then swapped catcher Bob Schmidt to Washington Senators for outfielder Marty Pate. The Senators will also get pitcher Dave Stenhouse and give up another player, as yet unnamed.

BUSY TRADERS

Busiest traders of all so far, Chicago White Sox sent Andy Carey, one-time Yankee third baseman to the Philadelphia Phillies and an unnamed farm-system player to Philadelphia Phillies for two unnamed minor leaguers and cash.

Kansas City Athletics a promising colored catcher grabbed three members of the Milwaukee farm team in Van- the world champions, who already have Elston Howard, Johnny Blanchard and Yogi Berra to do their receiving. Gonder went to the Cincinnati Reds in exchange for Mar-

More Ladies, Please

All golfers who mailed their applications to the Daily Colonist Boxing Day golf tournament at Llandudno by Friday have had their entries accepted. The total count on Friday evening was 113 men and 22 ladies.

A few more applications from ladies will be accepted up to Monday noon, but at that time entries will close and the draw will be made. The entry of 113 men is one larger than a year ago.

They've Both Been Away Too Long

Joe Louis Back in Boxing—Direct Speech May Return

By RED SMITH

Joe Louis, who has been a racing referee and has lent his name to a public relations outfit and various other enterprises unfamiliar to him, is matchmaker now for some people in Los Angeles who want to be fight promoters. Presumably the people have money. It's kind of funny how many there are like that who want to be fight promoters.

Everybody says it's a dirty business and a dying business besides, although that Toronto-Philadelphia doubleheader last week ought to make it amply clear that nothing can kill boxing. Anyway, it seems to have an irresistible fascination for a lot of people who have had success in their own fields and don't need boxing, yet come craving for an opportunity to get into it.

There was a guy around New York a few years ago who offered a fine example of this. He had made his stack manufacturing plastic toilet seats. He could afford anything he wanted but he couldn't keep people from tattling when somebody asked, "What does he do?" and somebody else said, "He's a toilet-seat tycoon." He put his money into fight promotion hoping that when the question was asked the answer would be a respectful, "He's the man behind such-and-such a fight."

There was also Jim Norris, the poor little rich boy, and there was Bill Rosenzohn, with the rumpled Ivy League shirt, and there were Roy Colin and Tom Bolan and Bill Fugazy, who made marks in law and business but apparently weren't satisfied. There was even Cecil Rhodes Jr., the watch-charm empire builder.

It is good to see Joe Louis back where he belongs. He has been away too long. It was ten years ago that Rocky Marciano knocked him out in his last real fight. For a while after that he was around with the Norris promotions in some vaguely defined capacity but he didn't actually do anything. Since then he's had only fictitious connections with boxing, like his role as "technical adviser" to Floyd Patterson before the second match with Ingemar Johansson.

It seems longer than ten years. That's because so much has happened in the meantime, practically all of it bad.

We wouldn't think that a business which goes back to Jim Figg—no, Cain and Abel were amateurs—could change enormously in ten years, but it's going to seem very, very strange to Joe. For one thing, he'll be trying to do business with Gus D'Amato, which shouldn't happen to a guy who's already had to go through the mill with the Internal Revenue Service. Into each life some rain and all that sort of thing, but there should be limits.

JOE LOUIS
... should be limits

Ask any guy on the street what he admired most in Louis, apart from the way he could punch, and the chances are he would mention Joe's willingness to fight anybody, anytime, anywhere, and his wonderful honest, direct habit of speech.

They asked Louis what he'd do if Billy Conn fled from him in their second fight and he said, "He can run but he can't hide." They asked him to run from the ring before a bout during the war and he said, "We gonna run because we're on God's side." Guys in his dressing room made clucking noises of sympathy after Marciano knocked him out and he said, "I knocked out plenty guys."

When he was a young fighter just east from Detroit, news photographers in his training camp wanted him to pose eating watermelon. He said, "No. I don't like watermelon." This may have been the only time he ever shaved the truth. He's crazy about watermelon, but he realized the bright-eyed photographers hadn't learned that humorous picture of young Negroes munching watermelon were out of style.

The man Louis dealt with was Mike Jacobs, and whatever else Mike may have been he was a direct man.

A fellow went up to Mike's offices to demonstrate a recording machine. As he set it in motion, a long distance call came in for Mr. Jacobs. "Say something into that," Mike told Harry Markson, his publicity man. "What? Say anything. I'll be back in a minute."

Harry Markson wasn't long out of the newspaper business then. His favorite sportswriter was a man named W. Shakespeare. Groping he came up with a quotation, "When, in disgrace with fortune and men's eyes, I all alone beweep my outcast state and trouble deaf heaven with my bootless cries, and look upon myself, and curse my fate."

Just as he finished, Mike returned. They played the record back, and Mike's lip curled. "Ah, let go, Mike," he said, a blunt man. "I heard that 30 years ago."

Canucks Relaxed for Moment That Was All Flyers Needed

Vancouver Canucks played one of their best games of the season in the Western Hockey League last night, but they relaxed for just over three minutes in the third period and it cost them a victory over Edmonton Flyers.

"Trailing 2-1, Flyers scored three times in three minutes and 21 seconds to go ahead, then held on for a 4-1 victory that increased their lead to nine points in the northern division."

Defenceman Lloyd Haskin and forwards Len Lunde and Ed Jovan got the three-point goals for the Flyers and Len Lunde scored the last goal for Canucks with about nine minutes remaining.

In the early play, Canucks got a four-to-one victory in the first period, but in the third period, the club he once guest. His power play goal gave them a 2-1 lead in the second period.

Gilles Houvert, latest addition to a long line of Edmonton defencemen, performed brilliantly, making 21 saves against an improved Vancouver attack.

Flankers forward Don Philie and rookie defenceman Pete Walsh in the third period.

but extent of the injuries was not known.

In other games last night, Portland Buckaroos beat the Seals, 4-1, in overtime at San Francisco, and Calgary Stampede played to a 2-2 overtime tie with the Totems in Seattle.

Arlo Goodwin scored the winning goal for the Bucks at 1:57 of the overtime after Don Edmondson had tied the score for Seals with 31 seconds left in the third period.

Bill Saunders scored twice and Doug MacIntyre once for Portland, and Bob Solinger and Buddy Boone got the other goals for the Seals.

At Seattle, Sid Finney and Gord Veprava gave Calgary a 2-1 lead in the second period, a 3-1 lead in the third period, and a 4-1 lead in the fourth period.

Don Bamburgh made it 2-1 before the period ended and Rudy Filion tied it up in the third.

Handicap Plan Not Set

By JIM TAYLOR

There may yet be a change in the plan to use last year's averages as a basis for handicaps in this season's city ten pin tournament.

Rumor has it that the new executive of the city tennis association will call a meeting soon to reconsider the decision. In view of grumblings throughout the leagues.

The matter of the handicaps has been the main beef in a series of complaints about the city association meeting. Like most bowling complaints, they are being voiced over coffee at the cafeteria with friends rather than to the people in a position to do something about them.

But if you drink enough coffee and listen to enough bowlers, you get the feeling the bowlers consider themselves gipped by the meeting.

ONLY ONE VOTE

As approved in the new ABC constitution, each league was allowed only one vote. This meant that in the first time every city bowler wasn't able to voice an opinion. They didn't have the idea and they didn't have the chance in the ABC constitution, which has to be adopted by each association.

The change in the ABC constitution was aimed at large cities, where membership is so great that it would be practically impossible to bring all the bowlers to one meeting to vote. In that case it is only sensible to let a bowler represent a league. But Victoria's association isn't anywhere near that large yet.

As a solution, why don't secretaries of every league poll their bowlers, decide how the majority of their members feel on the handicap system, and write a letter to the association with the league vote?

Maybe then the issue would be settled properly.

Triplicates in league play are rare enough, but two of them in one six-team league on the same night is a real long-shot.

The long-shot came in at Aurora Lanes in the six-team Sunday mixed league, where Lynn Wood rolled three games of 172 and E. McMaster posted a 131 triplicate.

Leading scores this week:

FIFTEENS
Lynn Wood 300, E. McMaster 272, Dan Corbett 271, Fred Smith 268, Bud Smith 264, Doug Mann 261.

EXQUISITUM Chiefs moved back into a second place tie in the Exquisite Commercial Hockey League last night, handling Navy's eighth straight loss, 6-1, before 151 fans at the Sports Centre.

Jim Bronson scored two goals and assisted on two others to lead the Chiefs, who share second place with Army. Len Corry, Dennis Davy, Arnold Elbert and Walt Evanchuk got the other goals.

Navy couldn't beat goalie Ron Griffith until 8:52 of the third period, when Hardy Crowe scored from Ken Mc-Donald. Griffith made a total of 19 stops and Harvey Cox stopped 27 shots for the Sailors.

In a preliminary game, Army beat Chilliwack, 4-3 on two goals by Pat McNeill and singles by Marty Holm and Len Layton. Walt Walcott scored twice and Bob Finkler got the other goal for the visitors.

Bible Society Nears 90th Year

With its annual meeting early in the New Year, the Victoria branch, Canadian Bible Society, will start its 90th year of activity in this city.

In October, 1872, the branch's inaugural meeting was called by Dean Edward Cridge of the Reformed Episcopal Church in Victoria. The branch was formed with co-operation of ministers of the Methodist and Presbyterian churches and was confirmed by a meeting of citizens in November of the same year.

Clergy and congregations of city churches have carried on the society's work for 89 years, and the original minute book is now in the provincial archives.

Date of annual meeting will be announced later by Melvin Dehoben, branch secretary.

The familiar Christmas cantata "Bethlehem," by J. H. M. Adams, the pageant will be presented by the Young People's Union assisted by the senior choir.

In the cast will be Glen Higgins, Norman Wilkinson, Sharon McKinn, Graham Garman, Sharon Philbrook, Allan MacDonald, Newton Campbell, Rino Elverhoy, Ritchie Gage, Bill Williams, Brian Wilkin, Bruce Hardy, Mark Nott, Sharon Holdridge, Barbara Beattie, Patrice Harvey, Hazel McArthur, Sandra Lindsey, Lesley Hedden, LeRoyce Martin, Bonnie Spry, Carol Young, Nina Hitchcock and Pam Fisher.

Principal soloists will be Marguerite Hobbs, Shirley Jordens, soprano; Fred Godsalve, Hubert Cashman, baritone; Julian White, A. C. Nicholas, tenor. Other special parts will be sung by Harry Perkins, Barbara Haydon, Barbara Barry, Bruce Barr and Ruth Powell.

Choir is under the leadership of Julian White, and is accompanied by organist Margaret Wilmshurst.

Evening service at 7.30 p.m. Sunday at First United Church will take the form of a Christmas pageant.

Bow Bells Ending Silence

LONDON (Reuters)—Next week, London's Bow Bells again will ring out legitimacy for Cockney babies after 20 years of silence.

Five days before Christmas, at a signal from Prince Philip, a team of bellringers will restore to St. Maryle-Bow Church the voice of Cheapside district.

By definition, the Cockney is someone who was born within earshot of Bow bells. Thus since May 11, 1941, when Nazi bombers brought down the bells, there hasn't been a Cockney born in London.

Diet Can Avert Early Death

Your Wonderful Heart—Fourth of a Series

By KEN MacTAGGART and RON POULTON
Telegraph News Service

When doctors consider that heart disease will account for 40 per cent of all Canadian males who die between the ages of 25 and 65, they also wonder why it is that the Rantula, the Japanese and the men of Ceylon rarely have heart trouble.

Then they wonder what the fat man has to be jolly about since the death rate among overweight males is 79 per cent higher than among those of normal weight.

From there they point to atherosclerosis—the talk of hardening of the arteries—and find it associated with the majority of heart failures.

Some of them take still another mental step and declare atherosclerosis can be largely controlled by diet. And, having done that, they come right back to the Bantu, the Japanese and the man from Ceylon.

Blame Cholesterol

Those who favor dieting lay the blame on a white and waxy substance called cholesterol. Fats found in egg yolk, lard, cheese, butter and cream build cholesterol in the blood.

They say cholesterol helps plug the arteries, that it builds up waste which retards the flow of blood and sometimes breaks away in a thrombus (clot) to cause a coronary attack.

Other Sources

"Even when an individual eliminates cholesterol—rich foods from his diet, his body can manufacture cholesterol from other sources."

Where does all this leave the layman? It leaves him to take his doctor's advice, since all heart conditions are not treated the same way, anyhow.

It may also leave him intrigued by certain experiments conducted in dieting and by certain figures collected by the World Health Organization.

Meat Once a Week

When the Yemite Jews moved into Israel they stuck to their centuries-old, frugal diet. They do not eat cheese, milk, butter and have meat only once a week. Their blood is low on cholesterol. The Israelis of European origin also stick to their diets which are rich in animal fats. Their cholesterol level is high.

In Toronto, Dr. Fraser Mustard, an eminent medical scientist, doesn't hesitate to point to cholesterol as the villain which accelerates atherosclerosis.

Animal Fat Diet

He has been feeding pigs at the Guelph Veterinary College on a high level of animal fat diet for years. He puts a window in an artery and watches the cholesterol level climb as he stakes the animal with fatty foods. He has hundreds of slides showing the build up of atherosclerosis in their arteries.

Blood Will Eddy

He explains that blood does not flow steadily but will occasionally eddy, notably where blood vessels fork. There it can build up other deposits much as a river lays down a deltaic sandbar. He bluntly calls these athero deposits "garbage." They go to the arterial wall of the heart. If it is damaged, they adhere and build up, thickening the artery.

He concludes: "Experiments on pigs, dogs, primitive man, baboons and rhesus monkeys have shown they will get atherosclerosis on a low fat diet. So, the build-up of such deposits is a natural process."

Egg Yolk Diet

But he added: "A diet of egg yolk will increase the atherosclerosis. Proper diet, therefore, will work to decrease the athero."

Dr. Mustard stresses, however, no one should change their diet without first consulting their doctor because one person's tolerance to fat is different from another's.

Fatalistic Attitude

Most youth are just apathetic to religion. Indeed, if one is to believe college polls, they don't care about anything very much. Our contemporaries are in a state of separation of church and state has made religion irrelevant to them. The modern novel is indifferent to Christian values. The scientific discoveries and the threat of war have contributed to a fatalistic attitude.

One of the greatest fears is to be different, reminding one of Hitler's words, "The great thing about our people is that they are not different."

Young people must learn to worship again for it is at that very point that we are losing most of them, when they "finish" Sunday school and then go into the church where they have rarely worshipped before. The educational life of the church in its Sunday school and other classes is no substitute for worship in the church. But worship and study must both become more intense and more relevant.

Not Main Enemy

Other doctors don't entirely agree that cholesterol is the main enemy. They differ because the body naturally produces cholesterol. Natural cholesterol is necessary to the health of the blood.

And so the American Heart Association deduces that proof is lacking that athero-induced heart attacks can be prevented by changing from an animal to a vegetable fat diet.

Other Sources

"Even when an individual eliminates cholesterol—rich foods from his diet, his body can manufacture cholesterol from other sources."

Where does all this leave the layman? It leaves him to take his doctor's advice, since all heart conditions are not treated the same way, anyhow.

Toys Monday

Shoot Today Help 500

Targets and toys will be the focal points of Colonist 500 Fund activity over the next two or three days.

The Victoria Gun Club fires its opening blast this morning in its annual campaign to help the city's needy and give participants some fun doing it.

Hundreds of turkeys and hams are offered as prizes to competitors and nonshooters alike. All contestants will be handicapped to give everyone an even break.

Those who just go along for the ride will find games of chance and entertainment.

The fun begins at Albert

Head grounds this morning at 9, continues until dusk and gets under way for another full day at the same time Sunday morning.

Toys take front row centre at Maynard's Auction Rooms, 731-33 Johnson, Monday night at 7.30 when hundreds of them go on sale to the highest bidder. The cash goes to the 500 Fund.

Total return to the Fund from both events last year was more than $1,000.

All Municipal Staffs Given Holiday Jan. 2

A Jan. 2 holiday for all Greater Victoria municipal employees was recommended yesterday by the intermunicipal committee.

The committee was informed federal and provincial civil servants had already been granted the additional holiday.

Mild objection was raised by Mayor Percy Scourrah who said that according to statute Victoria must hold a city council meeting on the first Monday in January, which this year is Jan. 1, or on the following day if it coincides with a statutory holiday.

Reeve Chatterton:

Don't Force Metro It'll Come Anyway

By IAN STREET

Reeve George Chatterton said yesterday the present intermunicipal committee can provide the basis for what will eventually be one government for all Greater Victoria.

But he warned against any "precipitate action" designed to force amalgamation on the municipalities without full local consent.

Mayor Percy Scourrah said the "atmosphere of co-operation" between municipalities created by the committee during the past six years has contributed to the general willingness, at least in Saanich and Victoria, to discuss amalgamation.

Members asked The two veteran members of the intermunicipal committee were interviewed on the eve of their retirement. Mayor Scourrah has served six years on the joint body. Both retire from their posts Dec. 31.

Mayor Scourrah said: "Useful discussions could be held, it seems to me, between the representatives of Victoria and Saanich, with possible agreement on some form of joint government."

"It's possible 'mind, I'm not saying it's going to happen," the mayor added.

Reeve Chatterton said for now he favored closer co-operation between local municipalities through an agency such as the inter-municipal committee.

"This type of thing must be allowed to grow," the reeve said. "It cannot be imposed from the top. The action must come from the municipalities."

"Once this step is taken (amalgamation) really becomes effective."

Mr. Chatterton said he didn't agree with those who say amalgamation should be "forced on us" but added the provincial government should create new legislation to encourage integration of local municipal services.

The reeve said he was irked by the "multiplicity" of inter-municipal organizations such as the water board, cemetery board, library board, capital region planning board, and others. He suggested the inter-municipal committee itself could adopt some of these functions.

Mayor Scourrah cited the library and water boards as "outstanding examples" of inter-municipal co-operation.

Two Parting Members Get Christmas Cheer

Christmas cheer in the form of a glass of sherry and fruit cake was served to members of the Greater Victoria intermunicipal committee at the end of yesterday's meeting held in Oak Bay. Toasts were drunk to the health of Mayor Percy Scourrah and Reeve George Chatterton who retire from municipal office Dec. 31.

Outside Areas Meet Centennial Planners

Heads of the three local municipalities will meet city centennial planners Monday to discuss their contribution to Victoria's 100th birthday celebrations.

Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt representatives at yesterday's intermunicipal committee meeting decided to seek the meeting immediately rather than wait until early in the new year.

Coun. Allan Cox of Oak Bay said it was time to "get down to brass tacks."

Reeve George Chatterton of Saanich said if representatives could return to their own councils with a firm idea of what is required and how much it would cost, there is a better chance approval will be forthcoming.

Ald. G. K. Sammon of Esquimalt urged something be done in the next two weeks.

He said the issue was originally brought before the intermunicipal committee in January.

Nobody Wants Bentinck Island

Bentinck Island, the former leper colony island less than 15 miles from Victoria and literally only a stone's throw from the Rocky Point area of Vancouver Island, is up for rent for less than $40 a month. So far there have been no takers.

Actually, it is the old caretaker's residence which is for rent, but that would virtually include the whole island in Race Passage between Race

Same Prowler Suspected Looting Cars

The same prowler could be responsible for looting two cars parked at a Douglas Street motel.

Donald Strang, 1925 Kings, reported the loss of a blue steel tool box with tools worth about $300 from his car parked at the new courthouse or at the Tally Ho Motel.

A Sidney man H. W. Drew, 10171 West Saanich Road, said he lost a camera valued at $64, film, flashbulbs and several Christmas presents from his car parked on the Tally Ho lot.

Hall Help Sure Songhees Told

R.C. Indian Arts and Welfare Society has promised aid in the Songhees Indian in their project to build a community hall next year.

Assistance was pledged by society president, Dr. A. N. Beattie at a meeting this week. Mrs. Sam Joseph, who teaches native dances, told the meeting the Songhees had been collecting money for the last two years and the fund may soon be big enough to permit the start of construction.

A percentage of the returns from the Vancouver Island Festival, which is held each spring, will go to the fund. Mrs. Joseph said the hall would be used to stage native dances for tourists and teach hobbles and crafts to young people of the band.

Foreign Pupils Head For Holiday at Home

Students attending Victoria private schools are heading for the four corners of the earth this weekend to spend Christmas with their families.

Junior globe-trotters from University School include Niel Fraser, who left yesterday for his home in Buenos Aires; Arthur Gossler, who took off about the same time for Berlin; and David von Dehn who heads for Palm Springs today.

WITH FAMILIES Bruce and Gary Murdoch and Gordon Taylor will spend Christmas with their families in Whitehorse and Matt Kelly will be in San Francisco by Sunday morning.

In the girls' schools, the situation is much the same. Families in Dawson, Cranbrook, Revelstoke, Seattle and Port Angeles will welcome students returning home from St. Ann's Academy.

REMAIN HERE Carmen Valiente and Sylvia Lavagnino, both attending the academy from San Salvador, will spend their Christmas in Victoria, as will Lupita Echavarría and Maria Rosa of Mexico.

For Christmas travelling with a difference, there's St. Ann's student Cathy Johnson—a Victoria girl heading for Christmas holidays in Mexico.

OFF TO PERU On his way from Shawnigan Lake boys school to his home in Lima, Peru, is Don Whelan. Tommy and Kappy Pischel, Bill Wells and Bill Millmore will spend Christmas with families in San Francisco.

Tears Flow As Aid Comes To Pensioner

Several Victorians yesterday came to the aid of old-age pensioner Mrs. Anne O'Neill, 1705 Ryan, who lost her purse containing all her money in a downtown store Thursday.

"One man called and presented me with $2. A short while later a taxi pulled up and the man said several of his friends clumped in. He gave me $16," Mrs. O'Neill said. "I can take any number of hard knocks but this sort of kindness makes me cry. It was wonderful."

The wallet, containing about $40, Mrs. O'Neill's only money, remains on the missing list.

Slick Liberal Machine Wants Wilson to Run

Peter Bruton's NOTEBOOK

LIBERAL HELPING: The overwhelming success of mayor-elect Richard Bigger staff Wilson at the polls on Thursday can be attributed to the efficiency of the Liberal party machine.

For it was the Liberal brass from beginning to end who masterminded the new mayor's campaign.

Their aim: To have him stand as a Liberal candidate in either the next federal or provincial election.

Mr. Wilson admits he has been approached.

So far he's turned down the bids.

"I've got a full-time job now," he told us yesterday. "And I have never been a member of any political party."

But in the eyes of the Liberal brass this latter fact is not important. Last spring they had no hesitation in nominating David Gross as their candidate in the Esquimalt-Saanich by-election, although at the time he was still a card-carrying member of the Progressive Conservative party.

The first caller on Mayor elderly lady "I voted for Mr. Wilson and I voted for his wife too."

Which may explain why Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson—who is not related to the mayor-elect—topped the list of aldermen when the returns were in.

ITEMIZED ACCOUNT: A sign immediately to one side of the election result blackboard on the stage of the First United Church Hall may have been responsible for the briefness of Don Smith's visit Thursday evening. It read: "No Loitering."

And as a friend remarked, "Don shouldn't be too discouraged. At least he got 350 more votes than Bill Scott!"

FAMILY TIES: Friend of ours met an 82-year-old acquaintance Thursday afternoon and politely inquired if she had voted yet.

"Yes, I have," said the and I only bet on a sure thing," she said.

FOREIGN INTRIGUE: A closely-guarded secret during the mayoralty campaign concerned the actual birthplace of Richard B. Wilson.

So hot became the furor over "home rule" that he was still trying to hide it yesterday. Finally he confided in an interviewer that he was not, in fact, a Victoria city "native son." In fact he didn't live here for the first two years of his life.

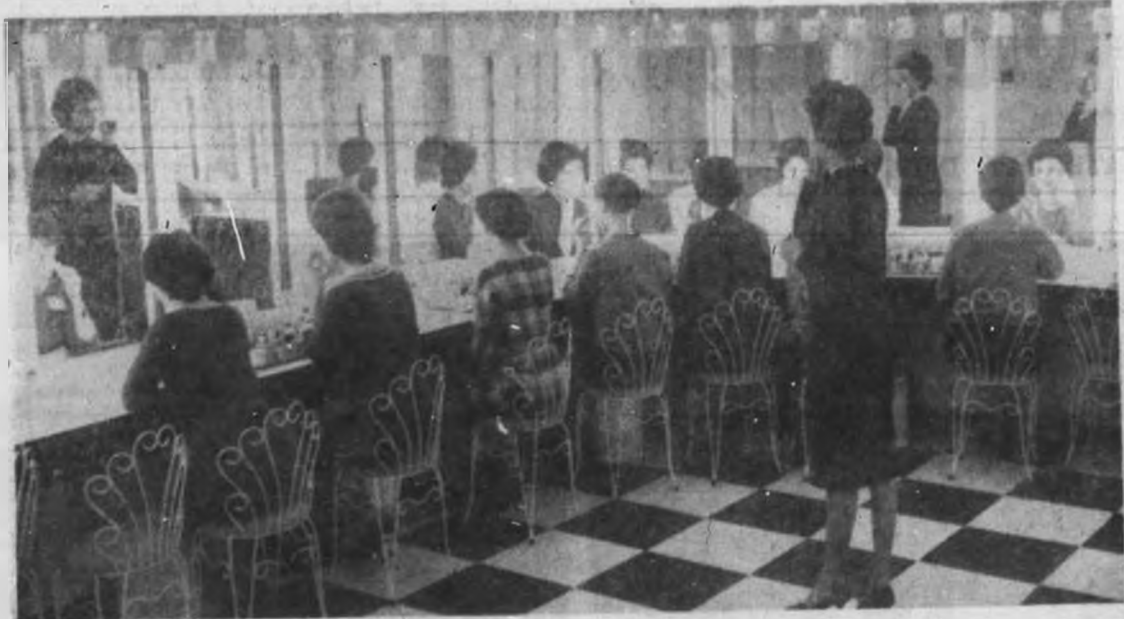

"Well where were you born?" asked the interviewer. And then it came.

"Oak Bay," whispered Mr. Wilson.

SORRY FOR THE INCONVENIENCE: It was business as usual for the Empress Hotel yesterday morning despite the fact no one could pass through the entrance doors.

Seems someone had mislaid the key.

For the first 20 minutes patrons had to take a detour through the servants' entrance.

Not Hold Up—Make-Up!

Proper make-up is considered an important part of modern banking by the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce. Here, students at the Commerce Career Centre, the first of its kind in North America, learn how to apply make-up under the direction of Miss Anne Bainaves (standing). When the week-long course is completed the girls will go to work in Metro Toronto branches of the Bank.

Girl Bankers Find Beauty

TORONTO — Join a bank, girls, and learn about money, how to walk, talk and make-up. Become a teller and a poised, public relations officer at the same time.

That's what the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce in Toronto is teaching all its new women employees at its attractively decorated new Commerce Career Centre established two blocks from head office.

Five smart girls are in charge of the new program establishing a precedent in the staff affairs of banking history. The Career Centre is composed of a spacious lounge furnished in gay decorator colors, three lecture rooms and a beauty room.

Sandra Shaw, 26, a dark haired, elegant former television and radio production assistant, has been hired by the bank to supervise this campaign to teach not only credit and debit but fashion and beauty arithmetic to its girls.

"I've visited all the leading banks in New York in this connection and they have nothing like this," said Miss Shaw. "We hope to give our employees an esprit de corps and a new assurance in handling their jobs."

Miss Shaw said the bank planned to put approximately 1,500 girls through an intensive four day course during the next year.

Another raven-haired beauty, Mrs. Bridget McClellan, the 29 year old former Bridget Healey and former assistant chief stewardess of a Canadian airline, is in charge of the customer relations program. She likes to tell her pupils "in soft Killarney brogue to be sure to greet their customers by their right names. 'There is nothing sweeter to a man than to hear the sound of his own name,' she nodded convincingly. 'And if it's unpronounceable it isn't rude to ask the customer to pronounce it.'"

Mrs. McClellan's responsibilities include teaching the girls how to handle a telephone. "If you leave a good impression on the telephone there is no doubt that you will indeed help to build goodwill and in turn more business for the bank," she said.

How not to answer the telephone? Don't speak too quickly, don't drop your g's, avoid using slang, don't speak too loudly, too softly and don't speak with something in your mouth, above all chewing gum!

"Language is the dress of thought," she said enraptured. "Everytime we speak our mind is on parade."

An Australian blonde, Anne Bainaves, 26 year old former secretary from Sydney, holds sway in the beauty room, in charge of make-up and grooming. "I am concentrating on giving the girls the smiling look," she said. "Nice girls in banks should have the natural look. They can use eye shadow, mascara, rouge, lipstick as long as it is applied correctly but we draw the line at the eyeliner because very few girls know how to use it."

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I am against you, your column and all the sexy junk you peddle under the guise of advice. It was bad enough that you managed to get your trash into several hundred family newspapers but now I see you've written a best-seller. This means your ability to damage people is greater than ever.

I bought your book just to see how far you'd go and I was amazed. That chapter entitled Teenagers and Sex is shocking. You actually tell young people how to neck. What in the world is wrong with you that you would put out such dangerous information?

You are an evil influence on young people and I intend to write to every clergyman I know and ask them to write to you and get you straight. I'm also calling the book stores and asking them to take your book off their shelves. —AN AMERICAN MOTHER.

Dear Mother: Thank you for your letter. I sincerely hope you write to the clergymen. I've already had reactions from religious leaders of many faiths. This is what they had to say about the book and especially about the teenage chapter:

"Lutheran (Fargo, N.D.): 'Wonderful common sense—exactly what our teenagers need.' —Rev. J. Q.

"Catholic (South Bend, Ind.): 'Simply terrific. So wise and witty and in language teenagers understand.' —Father T. H. University of Notre Dame.

"Methodist (Ottawa, Kans.): 'I want to give a copy of your book to every couple I marry.' —Rev. C. P. K.

Church of Latter Day Saints (Salt Lake City): 'You speak basic truths, Ann Landers.'

Hamilton-South

Double-Ring Ceremony

A pretty double-ring wedding ceremony was performed by Dr. F. E. H. James in Metropolitan United Church when Diane Margo South, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy South of Beechwood Avenue, was united in marriage with Mr. Kenneth Laverne Hamilton, son of the late Mr. H. C. Hamilton, and Mrs. A. Price of Tait Street.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attractive in a sheath of white wool lace fashioned with long sleeves, cummerbund and scoop neckline. She carried red roses, white carnations and silvered holly leaves. Her hair, shaped like a bow, was of satin and velvet. Her only jewelry was the gift of the groom, pearl necklace and earrings.

Mrs. Loretta Curtis, matron of honor, chose a sheath in turquoise brocade with headpiece of turquoise flower and tulle. She carried yellow roses and white carnations.

Best man was Mr. Raymond Watson.

At the reception in the Blue Room, Mr. H. McLaughlin proposed the toast. The Lancers trio played background music.

For an up-island honeymoon the new Mrs. Hamilton topped her costume with a black coat with stand-away collar, wore white hat and gloves.

On returning, Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton will live at 1329 Stanley Avenue.

A special guest at the wedding was the bride's aunt, Mrs. P. Seadlock of North Burnaby.

Bapcoteers Lead Songs at Party

Songs by the Bapcoteers Male Chorus was one of the highlights that added to the fun-filled atmosphere of the Bapco Employees' Association annual dinner and entertainment held Friday evening at Hollywood House.

More than 300 members and guests were welcomed by Owen Williams, association president, who also extended thanks to the committee members and to company officials who co-host the affair.

Bapco president, A. Allan Pendray, introduced retired members of the staff. Tomboles, community singing followed by a dance in the Wallace Room wound up the Christmas party.

PERSONAL MENTION

On Tuesday Mr. G. J. A. Slater, recently-appointed Regional Information Officer for the United Kingdom, will call on the Lieutenant-Governor at Government House. That afternoon His Honor and Mrs. Pearkes will give a tea at Government House for Miss Nina Holden, Miss Canada.

Thursday the students of Victoria College will visit Government House for their annual Christmas Carol singing in the ballroom.

Union Club Dinner

Bovey, RCN, and Mrs. Bovey.

At Wedding

Out-of-town guests at the Unwin-Stewart nuptials included the groom's grandmother, Mrs. H. B. Whyte of Niagara Falls; Mrs. M. Stewart of North Battleford; Mrs. W. Gosling of Rapid View, Sask.; Mr. and Mrs. G. Harman of Princeton; Mr. and Mrs. P. Harmon of Drayton Valley, Alta.; Miss Jean Stewart of Edmonton, and Mr. J. Anton of Edmonton.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Margaret Stewart of North Battleford, Saskatchewan, and the groom is the son of Capt. and Mrs. F. E. Unwin of 2741 Burdick Avenue, Victoria.

Rev. T. M. Badger officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by Mr. A. Highet, the bride was charming in a full-length gown with white lace bodice and full nylon skirt. Lace fell on either side of the skirt and was drawn up on the sides by a white rose. She wore a chapel veil sprinkled with sequins and a crown of flowers. She carried white carnations and red rosebuds.

On returning from their wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Unwin will reside at 1047 Falmouth Road, Victoria.

Garden Notes

Book Best for Gift

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

I imagine a considerable number of Colonist readers will be heading downtown this morning to get in some licks on their Christmas shopping. If they have any really keen gardeners on their gift list, I warn them here and now it isn't going to be easy to find a present which will really ring the bell.

The true gardening "bible" as distinguished from the common or garden homeowner who merely dabbles in the hobby, already owns every ingenious tool gadget and gimmick known to horticulture. A truckload of manure or a sack of fertilizer is always acceptable, but gift-wrapping is a bit of a problem. The easy way out is a gift certificate for plants or seeds, but such a gift seems to lack warmth—the eye doesn't light up when you find a credit note under the Christmas tree as it does when there is a real, physical object to unwrap.

If this is your problem, I don't think you would go far wrong in buying a garden book for your happy friend or relative. Chosen with a modicum of intelligence, a book is sure to be read through once, then dipped in and consulted time after time for years to come. From the ardent novice to the green-thumbed expert, I have yet to find a gardener who could resist the lure of a book on his chosen hobby.

The basic item for the start of a gardener's library is a good horticultural encyclopedia. There is a wide choice here, ranging from the five-volume Dictionary of Gardening published by the Royal Horticultural Society at about $40 down to a 30-cent paperback called The Complete Guide to Gardening. For my money, the most practicable and easiest to use is Taylor's Encyclopedia of Gardening.

This is a good, standard work, available at almost any good book-seller. My particular volume is the third edition, published in 1956, about 1,250 pages, and if I remember correctly, it set me back about $6. I believe it has been re-issued in a two-volume edition and I'm afraid I don't have a clue as to its present price.

An encyclopedia isn't exactly the kind of book you'd want to take to bed with you, though, and for sheer entertainment I'd like to get in a plug for two sparkling books by Ruth Stout: Horticulture and facile pen seem to run in the Stout family, for Ruth's brother is Rex Stout, creator of the Nero Wolfe detective stories. If you remember, the fat detective's hobby was the growing of orchids.

Ruth Stout's first book is, to my mind, her best and it bears the intriguing title "How to Have a Green Thumb Without an Aching Back."

Her secret weapon is the mulch, and by mulching everything in sight with spoiled hay, leaves, lawn mowings and the like, she does her gardening without any digging, plowing, weeding or watering. She tells her story in a most informal and easy-to-read manner and the book has acquired the unique reputation of being the most-staple volume in the public libraries—and not only from libraries. A doctor in Oregon and a dentist in Pennsylvania both keep copies in their waiting room—or at least try to, the doctor has had 16 copies stolen, the dentist, 23!

"How to Have a Green Thumb Without an Aching Back" is published by Exposition Press and sells for $2.75.

Ruth Stout's second book is called "Gardening Without Work," and she labels it "for the aging, the busy and the indolent." In essence, she takes up where she left off in her Green Thumb book, relating more of her experiences with the no-digging method of gardening. It is a good book if you have read her first, not so good if you buy it on its own. The publisher in this case is Devin-Adair and the price $3.95.

John Crosby

Critic at Large

We're Gaining on Apes

The arts are in a state of ferment almost as confusing and explosive as the internal affairs of the Congo. The Metropolitan Museum, we all know, had just shelled out $2,300,000 for a Rembrandt called "Aristotle Contemplating the Bust of Homer" when the rumor started flying that it isn't Aristotle. It's maybe Virgil or maybe not even him. Is Virgil worth two million three? Or was Aristotle, for that matter? Is it really Homer? Or Rembrandt?

It's enough to shatter one's faith in the management of our greatest museum for junk shop, depending on how you feel about old armor and fake Etruscan statues. If your faith hasn't already been slightly shaken by that price and the lingering suspicion that Mr. James Rorimer, director of the Metropolitan, wasn't felled by auction fever rather than simply gripped by bad judgment.

Right on top of that, a lady stepped up to a guard at the Museum of Modern Art and said coldly "Sir, your Matisse is upside down." Surely this is an historic utterance, deserving to be ranked with "Apres moi le deluge" or "Let 'em eat cake" or maybe even "A black frog cannot be whitewashed" (Khrushchev).

It has always been my feeling that the most shattering thing you can say to a man is: "Sir, your Matisse is upside down" is more civilized though, of course, you can't use it just everywhere.

The fact a Matisse, hung upside down for 47 days before anyone discovered it is a significant and rather depressing commentary on the upside-downness and way outness of art in general. There are other signs the art world is either decadent or looney or both. A chimpanzee named Beauty, who has been finger-painting for six months, held her first exhibition of abstracts at the Bianchini Gallery and sold 90 paintings which ranged in price from $25 to $35.

I saw a good many of Beauty's paintings and two thoughts struck me. The first and simplest: Beauty is a hell of a name to tag an artist with. The second and denser thought is that Beauty is far closer to Jackson Pollock than she is to Michaelangelo. It makes me wonder whether the apes are making enormous strides forward to the people world—or whether people are making enormous strides backwards to the ape world.

Of course, if it'll make you feel any better, the Russians are having their troubles in the art world, too. While we're mumbling apologies and hanging the Matisse right side up, they've had to take down all those statues of Stalin, including one in Prague over forty feet high. Our mistaken judgments are easier and much less expensive to rectify.

Meanwhile, the "general dizziness" has not exactly avoided the world of music. Carnegie Recital Hall the other day was the setting for a concert of the works of Yoko Ono. Against a taped background of mumbled words and wild laughter, a girl spoke earnestly about peeling a grapefruit, squeezing lemons, and counting the hairs on a dead child. The instruments went squeak, squawk. The hall was packed. Well, what can a composer do when all the best violinists are in the air force, playing at White House parties?

Meanwhile, the architects are not letting the art or music world get too far out in front of them in the field of general looniness. How else are we to explain the Summit Hotel? Actually the Summit Hotel was designed by Morris Lapidus, of whom The Nation's architectural critic, Walter McDougall, has said, "He is an interesting architect with a strange specialty—bad taste."

Hollywood Today

By Sheila Graham

Have Temper, Will Snub

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Don't invite Richard Boone and anyone else to the same world. The somber star of "Have Gun, Will Travel" snubs everyone who tries to talk to him on the Paramount lot, where he is filming the TV series. He has a "Don't Disturb" sign on his table in the commissary (overwork must have caught up with him. He used to be eager and friendly).

Laurence Harvey peddling on his bike to the set of "A Girl Named Tamiko" stopped to tell me he will "never, never marry." He was so vehement I expect him to elope with Joan (John) next week end.

Capable critic of Billy Wilder's new comedy "One, Two, Three" Billy got carried away with his own gags. Jimmy Cagney shouted too much. Horst Buchholz is not meant for comedy. But Ariane Francis was excellent in her first movie.

Swissborn Lilo Pulver, brought here a few years ago for dramatic roles at which she was bad, was excellent as the slinky secretary.

President Kennedy's father in Florida will be getting a new neighbor: young actor George Hamilton is selling his new by home. "Too expensive to keep up," said George on the set of "Two Weeks in Another Town."

There's a twist to the twist parts: the Kirk Douglases are giving this week. It is for his birthday and Edward G. Robinson's. They became good friends in Rome during the "Town" location, before they were driven back to work here by the rains in Italy.

Richard Beymer will attend the royal command performance of his "West Side Story" in London. He will fly there from Italy where he is now playing the young Hemingway in "Adventures of a Young Man." It will be Richard's first glimpse of himself in the finished picture.

Robert Ryan turned down a big deal to do a TV series for CBS. "I'll continue in motion pictures as long as I can make a living," he says. "But I'm not adamant about staying out of TV forever. The motion picture industry is in more trouble than people, even here in Hollywood, realize."

Brando sings? He did a talkie kind of singing in "Gun and Dolls." Commando Resnais is dishing a 65-piece orchestra in front of Marlon's fingers if he will sign a contract and sing.

All that stuff in the British papers about how Ron Moody was going to New York for "All American" with a salary of more than $100,000 was invented by his press agent. I hope there is still a chance that David Merrick will persuade the Briton to repeat his role of Fagin in "Oliver" which comes to Broadway next season.

Ibbie Reynolds always gets what she goes after—keeping it, of course, is something else. But she is delighted to get Governor Champion to direct her next movie, "My Six Loves." Ibbie plays a musical comedy star who adopts six orphans.

Marlon Brando looked miserable when I spotted him leaning against the door of the "Molloy on the Bounty" sound stage at Metro. He was reading the new ending by Ben Hecht, hastily imported from New York to get this film finished.

Shirley Booth's real name is Thomas Ford. When she met director John Ford the other day Shirley quipped, "John wanted to meet a relative."

Guard Turns Black, Boss Turns Red

Do or Dye for Don Jail Order from Governor

TORONTO (CP)—A 30-year-old Don Jail guard who had his prematurely whitened hair dyed black says he has been ordered to have it changed back or lose his job.

T. Brennan Keatinge, a native of London, who started work at the jail last January, had his hair dyed Saturday.

He said jail governor David Dougall ordered him Tuesday to get rid of the dye job or "you'll be out of a job."

Before coming to Canada Mr. Keatinge was a member of Scotland Yard in London. He was a victim of a gas explosion while investigating a suicide. Shock from the explosion left his hair nearly white.

Mr. Keatinge said he has not removed the dye—"I don't think it's possible," said Governor Dougall.

"That's official business of the jail and nobody else's. Other than that I'm not making any comment."

Mr. Keatinge said a fellow guard, Tony Strimmon, also from London, put him on to the hair salon.

"I looked like a man of 15 or 30 instead of 30," he said.

"My wife likes my hair dark and everyone else at work likes it, too."

General damages of "at least" $2,500 are being sought from the city of Victoria by a lawyer representing a Saanich boy who was injured in a swimming accident at Beaver Lake a year ago.

Gerald Lander, counsel for 15-year-old Marcus Gairdner, 3932 Cumberland Road, Saanich, said in closing arguments before Mr. Justice R. Weather in B.C. Supreme Court that due to the long period of convalescence and the fact the boy underwent two operations, damages should be over $2,500.

The Daily Crossword Puzzle

'Injured Workman Knew Procedure'

A former plywood mill worker who claims he is owed $4,500 in back compensation was advised of the procedure open to him, Labor Minister Leslie Peterson said yesterday.

He was commenting on charges made by Cecil McCulloch, now of 110 Government Street, who injured his back at Alberni three years ago.

ADMISSION REFUSED
Mr. McCulloch charged he had been refused admission to Mr. Peterson's office when he tried to present his case in person.

"I understand he did come here," said Mr. Peterson. "And it's true he didn't get to see me. You see, I was in the Okanagan."

SERVICES OFFERED
But, added the minister, Mr. McCulloch did have an interview with deputy labor minister William Sands and was offered the services of the department's compensation counselor.

"He was also advised how to process an appeal to the Workmen's Compensation Board but I understand he hasn't done so," said Mr. Peterson.

The minister would not discuss the merits of Mr. McCulloch's case.

BOARD MATTER
"That's a matter for the board," he said.

Mr. McCulloch said he was paid by the compensation board for a while but estimates he is still owed some $4,500.

Liberals Offer Expert To Appraise Black Ball

VANCOUVER (CP) — Provincial Liberal leader Ray Perrault says his party is willing to pay $1,000 to bring an expert from San Francisco to make an independent appraisal of the Black Ball Ferry Co., recently acquired by the B.C. government, if Premier Bennett allows an inspection.

The expert is Capt. Irvin Hansen of a California marine surveying firm. He retired from the U.S. Navy in 1936.

Faces Nine Counts

Bail Hiked to $4,000 For Ex-Land Agent

An additional $1,500 was tacked onto the $2,500 bail set for former city real estate man Milton H. King who now stands charged on nine counts of theft by conversion.

The charges involve a total of more than $31,000. Complainants and the amounts involved—in the individual charges—are: Patterson-Hunt Building Ltd., $1,700; Varsity Realty Ltd., $10,000; Gladys Milligan, $2,600; Thomas and Rebecca Bennett, $400; James and Ann Colvin, $1,200; estate of E. J. Savanna, $3,200 and J. Stewart Smith, $2,887.

READ FIRST CHARGE

In a brief court appearance yesterday, only the first charge was read.

Defence counsel David Hummel elected trial in magistrate's court on this count, but reserved plea until Jan. 5 because, he said, there may be a re-election on the method of trial and a request for a preliminary hearing.

At that time, details of the other counts will be read and election made.

MISUNDERSTANDING

The additional bail was requested by prosecutor Angus Smith, who said original bail of $2,500 on seven counts of theft by conversion resulted from a "misunderstanding."

King had originally been released on $1,500 bail on the first charge.

This was boosted to $2,500 when six more charges were laid.

But Mr. Smith explained that he had wanted the original amount of bail "increased by $2,500."

NO OBJECTIONS

Mr. Hummel offered no objections to the increase.

Sureties for the first seven counts were put up by Jack Barracough. Another bondsman provided the additional bail.

Dunsmuir Starts A Reform Group

A new political reform group open to all political groups "who believe in freedom, justice and democracy" was launched yesterday by Robin Dunsmuir.

The grandson of Hon. James Dunsmuir, B.C. premier from 1900 to 1902 and lieutenant-governor from 1906 to 1909, said his Political Reform Association of B.C. would concentrate on educating the public to politics.

It would not contest provincial elections but might endorse old-line parties if they supported the association's principles.

Mr. Dunsmuir said the founding of the association was brought on by the B.C. government seizure of the B.C. Electric Co.

The association's 10-point program includes safeguarding true principles and the rule of law; raising the standards of parliamentary procedure; protecting the interests of individuals and minority groups; and promoting political education of the people.

Reduction Urged in B.C.

Is Fishing Scheme Fair?

VANCOUVER (CP) — Federal Fisheries Minister MacLean said Friday he doubted if a reduction in the number of B.C. fishermen, as recommended in a report to Parliament last March, would solve the problems of the west coast industry.

The minister said reduction of the fishing force would be advantageous to some but bring hardships to others.

SINCLAIR REPORT

"The question is," the minister said, "is it fair? There are objections to this plan both from the department and parts of the fishing industry."

Mr. MacLean was commenting on a report by Dr. Sol Sinclair, University of Manitoba economist commissioned in 1958 to study ways of putting B.C.'s ailing fishing industry back on its economic feet.

The report recommended the number of fishermen be reduced by freezing commercial fishing licences for five years. The report also urged only those who could show evidence of having fished commercially for at least two years should get licences.

Obviously this presents a problem as to how and when to we introduce additional fishermen into the industry if the situation warrants it," the minister commented.

He said Britain's entry into the Common Market would not necessarily mean a heavy tariff on B.C. canned salmon exports. It could be reduced by a lowering of Canadian duty on certain European Union Loses Appeal

OTTAWA (CP) — Local 852 of the International Union of Operating Engineers lost yesterday before the Supreme Court of Canada on a certification-rights order by the British Columbia Labor Relations Board.

The board had rejected the application of the Engineers in April, 1960, to act as bargaining agent for engineers and firemen employed in 10 plants of various provincial forest industries.

The engineers tried unsuccessfully to have the B.C. Supreme Court quash the order, arguing that copies of final arguments had not been forwarded to them.

The B.C. Appeal Court last March upheld the Engineers.

Tory Strikes Back At Liberal 'Sneak' In Impropriety Case

TORONTO (UPI)—John Fullerton, Conservative member of the provincial legislature, struck back Friday at charges he had done business with the government while a member.

Children Perish In Fire

WATERFORD, Ont. (UPI)—Five swept through a home yesterday killing five children in their beds while their parents were away visiting a sick grandfather in Waterloo, Ont. Two other children escaped when they went downstairs for a drink of water and discovered the fire which was believed to have started from an overheated coal stove in the kitchen.

The dead were identified as Janet Hoffman, 11, Robert, 10, Archie, 7, Patricia, 4, and Glenford, 18 months. The two survivors were Nancy, 8, and Richard, 6. They were the family of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Hoffman.

The charges were aired in the legislature yesterday by Liberal Elmer Sopha, who linked Fullerton with a logging contracting company that received $237,955 from the government.

Fullerton told a hushed legislature Sopha's charges were "completely and entirely groundless."

NOTHING WRONG

"There was absolutely nothing wrong in what I did," he said.

He asked that the legislature's committee on privileges and elections consider "the entire matter."

"In the meantime I shall make a full public statement next week which will make the falsity of the claim apparent," Fullerton said.

He charged Sopha was a "sneak" and attacked the Liberal for "waiting until I left last night before making the charges."

Premier Roberts denounced Sopha's charges as a deliberate political trick to embarrass Fullerton and the government.

Day Of Fear

By TED PULFORD

TIMMY WRIGHT is nine years old and he speaks with the irrefutable logic of the very young.

Here is his story of the first Christmas he remembers.

"I knew it was Christmas, because there was a tree and all, but that isn't why I remember it. I remember it because my Dad was drinking and falling all over and he hit my mother."

"The next day Mom and I and the baby got out of there and we've been here ever since and Dad never comes around any more."

With Christmas, 1961, a few days away Timmy Wright and his mother face a continuing crisis which began when the family went on city welfare two years ago and came to grips with physical want.

Lashed him if he was looking forward to Christmas, and this is all he said:

"Why? I'm just afraid my Dad's going to come home." This nine-year-old's childhood dream, of a Christmas brimming with love and good things and the warm knowledge that his house is truly a home, has probably been shattered beyond all mending.

For him, just as for you, Christmas time is memory time—but his are the stuff of which nightmares are made.

While nothing can be done to change Timmy Wright's impressions of past Christmases, his Christmas to come is in your hands just as surely as is your own.

Timmy and his mother will be getting a Colonist 500 cheque this year—a cheque which will mean much in the way of good food and clothes and wanted gifts for them both.

And for Timmy, perhaps, the cheque will have an extra message—one that will bring some meaning into the Christmas seasons which lie ahead.

Think of him when you reach for your cheque book. Donations may be mailed or brought to The Daily Colonist, 2631 Douglas, or dropped off at Acousticon of Victoria, 740 Yates, between 9 and 5 weekdays or from 9 to 3 on Saturday.

Export Ban A Fantasy

Power Flowing
South for Years

—Hydro Chief

By TERRY HAMMOND

In his maiden policy speech since his appointment 2½ years ago as B.C. Hydro chairman, Dr. Hugh Keenleyside yesterday launched a scathing attack on Canada's no-power-export policy and challenged its existence.

Addressing a Nanaimo service club he said that the basic reason behind the controversial policy over which Premier Bennett has locked horns with the federal government is outdated and probably not even valid.

Fog Chokes London, Vanishes

LONDON (Reuters)—A thick winter fog blanketed London Friday but suddenly lifted in a surprising weather change.

The British Automobile Association described it as "the most remarkable weather change we have ever known."

Within a half-hour reports of dense fog from 38 centres in central London changed to "all clear." The association called it a "fly-away fog."

India Prepared

Showdown In Goa Imminent?

BELGAUM, India (Reuters)—Indian forces stepped up border manoeuvres yesterday for what appeared to be an imminent showdown with Portugal over the Portuguese enclave of Goa.

The military preparations went ahead as U.S. Ambassador John Galbraith called on Indian Prime Minister Nehru in New Delhi in an attempt to head off the threatened war.

One report said Indian forces would invade Goa within 48 hours. Military observers believe an invasion would be a pushover for India which has 30,000 troops ready for action. They claimed the Indian force could overrun the 1,300-square-mile territory in a matter of days, if not hours.

Trail Blazes Safety

TRAIL (CP)—The motorists of this British Columbia West Kootenay city are driving with their headlights on today, marking the completion of seven high way-fatality-free years.

The record is the best for any North American city with more than 10,000 inhabitants.

Trail was congratulated by Prime Minister Diefenbaker, Premier Bennett and provincial Highways Minister Gagliardi.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the achievement is evidence of a fine regard in the community for traffic regulations and their purpose, the protection of human lives.

Elisabethville Capture Near for UN

ELISABETHVILLE (AP)—Relentlessly rolling up spectacular gains, troops of the United Nations fought their way toward the heart of Elisabethville Friday in a drive for control of this capital of secessionist Katanga province.

"This looks like the big UN push," said a longtime Belgian resident in comment on the climatic military phase. "The next few days will settle the fate of Katanga."

By nightfall the UN vanguard held positions only 350 yards from the city's centre.

Reports told of hundreds of wounded streaming to city hospitals and more than a score of dead.

The offensive was kicked off from the northern outskirts.

In Kitwe, Northern Rhodesia, Prime Minister Sir Roy Welensky of the Rhodesian Federation said President Moise Tshombe of Katanga "could come here without any question" if the province falls to the UN forces.

DENIED SUPPLIES

Welensky, a strong Tshombe supporter, whose federation borders Katanga, denied his government is supplying arms to Tshombe forces.

Reuters reported that Tshombe issued a communique Friday night putting forth a proposal for a Congolese union along the lines of his long-standing proposal for a federation of the Congo's provinces.

Tshombe also offered to meet with Cyrille Adoula, premier of the Congo's central government, but only on neutral ground. He suggested one of the former French African states.

MONETARY UNION

In the communique Tshombe proposed a Congolese customs and monetary union with common defence and foreign policies.

On the subject of a cease-fire, he said that should one be arranged it would have to be on the basis of the present positions held by Katanga and United Nations troops.

Earlier, Tshombe's finance

Thant

Truce Bids

Vetoed

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Acting Secretary-General Thant sent a blunt reply Friday night to two French-allied African countries which called for a cease-fire in the Congo's secessionist Katanga province.

Thant said the United Nations would stop its military action against Katanga troops only if guaranteed that it could carry out all of its Congo resolutions "to the satisfaction of the Security Council and the General Assembly."

UP TO CHIEF

The United States, faced with a cease-fire mediation request from President Moise Tshombe of Katanga, said earlier the question of a cessation of hostilities was one for the secretary-general to decide.

Thant received a cable from President Phibert Tsiranana of the Malagasy Republic saying, "It is essential to lay down arms and to allow the voice of the heart and of reason to be heard."

TRUCE PLEA

Abbe Fulbert Youlou, president of the Congo Republic (Brazzaville), who joins the Congo (Leopoldville), cabled a plea to Thant to issue instructions for an immediate ceasefire in Katanga.

Market Crisis 'Old History'

TORONTO (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker last night likened Britain's proposals to join the European Common Market to a situation that "threatened to destroy the economy of British North America 20 years before Confederation."

Recalling the situation more than a century ago, the prime minister said that, when Britain withdrew "what were then called 'colonial' but would now be called 'Commonwealth' preferences," Canada entered into a reciprocal trade agreement with the United States for 10 years and "a clamor followed for full commercial union, even annexation, with the United States."

"The answer to that challenge... was the creation of a new nation."

French Fail to Balk East-West Talks

Many Red Designs 'As Bad as Berlin'

PARIS (UPI)—The U.S. and Britain last night won backing from their NATO allies to resume diplomatic contacts with the Russians, but only after a final session in which France dissented strongly.

Delegates attending the last session in the North Atlantic council's three-day meeting said French Foreign Minister Couve de Murville found himself alone in his opposition to talks with Russia on Berlin.

HOPE EXPRESSED

The other 14 nations supported the efforts "in the hope a negotiated settlement could be achieved."

The closing communique skirted the disagreement but stressed the Russian threat to peace over Berlin. Western counter-measures and the theme that "world peace cannot indefinitely rest on a precarious balance of mutual terror."

RUSA REVIEW

Earlier, U.S. Secretary of State Rusk told the foreign, finance and defence ministers of the 15 nations Communist designs on the Middle East, Southeast Asia and Latin America may be as dangerous as the threat to Berlin.

He did not deal specifically with Berlin but presented the council a sweeping review of world conditions.

He said the U.S. is taking steps to liberalize its trade

Dox Sniffs Under Rocks For Peace Pipe Plans

VANCOUVER (CP)—Dox, an RCMP tracking dog, led police Friday night to a briefcase containing plans for the Westcoast Transmission Peace River pipeline project.

The briefcase had been stolen from engineer Peter Robinson's car. He said the plans were the only copies in existence and their loss would have delayed the project.

RCMP set Dox to work and she led them straight to the briefcase under a pile of rocks. The contents were intact.

Pigs May Slim Humans

LONDON (AP)—British scientists said Friday they may have discovered a new way to lose weight. They think they have found a new hormone in pigs which operates on the pituitary gland to burn up fat.

The government-backed National Research Council—convinced that the project looks promising—has contributed $11,208 toward further research.

The gland is reported to produce a substance which controls the rate at which food is burned up by the body. When extra doses of the hormone are injected into the body, the body burns up surplus fat as well as a normal food supply.

Biochemist Dr. Ivor Smith has headed the experiment. "The research is at a very early stage," he said in an interview, "and we are not trying to produce a magic slimming cure. But it is possible that we may eventually be able to help some people who, because of some physical abnormality, are very much overweight."

Scientists at London's Middlesex Hospital have been extracting small amounts of the hormone from pigs and injecting it into mice. They discovered that the mice lost 10 per cent of their original weight in two weeks.

Mink at $28 —No Takers

ATLANTA (UPI)—A $3,300 mink coat was offered for sale at $28 in a small pawnshop this week—without takers. The pawnbroker, not realising the value of the coat, said he bought it for $18 from a boy and girl whom police charged with stealing it from the back of a truck.

Painful Life For Pastor Ends in Joy

By KLAUS MUENTER

DUNCAN—The head of one of the two Lutheran congregations here, Pastor Heinrich Thielmann had to follow a long road of suffering, renunciation and struggle until he reached the Cowichan Valley.

PASTOR THIELMANN ... long struggle

An old farm house, serving as a church on Sundays since 1946, is the home of the pastor, his wife and their four children.

Of German origin, Pastor Thielmann was born in the Black Sea area of the Russian empire, and his childhood was shadowed by the declining Czarist era.

Following an order issued by the last czar in 1916 to evacuate all German settlers to Siberia, Pastor Thielmann's father gave up his prospering farm, and moved his family to Omsk, far beyond the Ural Mountains.

The family of eight boys and six girls began to sink roots into the fertile land when the Red flood drove the Czarist army of Admiral Kolchak out of Omsk. Young Thielmann was then 14.

Escaped Death

The anti-Bolshevik army of the admiral mercilessly took all males over 14, robbed the farms and left a trail of misery. Young Thielmann and his father and brothers escaped, being abducted and shot by the retreating White army by hiding for many days.

When the Reds finally arrived and declared themselves liberators the suffering really began. His pictures of the winter of 1919 are very vivid. It was the coldest he ever can remember. Temperatures sank to 49 below zero and, without food themselves, the Reds forced the farmers to kill their last cattle and deliver them to a central point in Omsk.

His father was thrown into

Only Two Lived

All but two of his brothers died in camps and mines. Pastor Thielmann was warned shortly before the secret police called to arrest him as a farmer's son.

He escaped to Moscow to find assistance at the German embassy but finally returned to Omsk without leaving the railroad station he changed trains and fled to Manchuria.

Arrested for having entered Manchuria illegally, he and other fellow-sufferers experienced another nightmare.

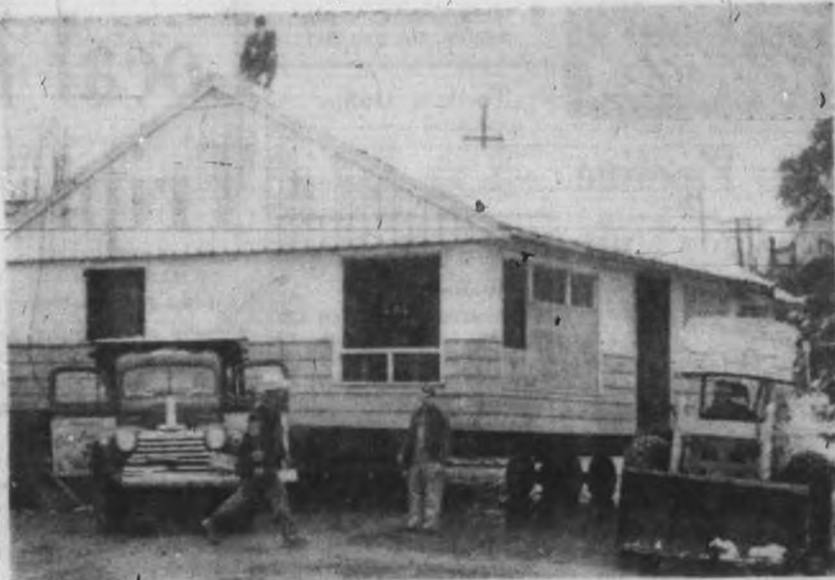

An official told them they would be returned to Russia if they failed to name a guarantor. Only a few hours before the painful waiting was to end, a Baltic doctor from the former Kolchak army bailed them out.

Eventually Pastor Thielmann reached Shanghai and worked his way on a German freighter to the land of his ancestors.

Attending a Bible school in western Germany the pastor eventually was trained as a singer and with his own quartet successfully travelled the European continent. He decided to become a clergyman while serving with the German forces in the Second World War in East Prussia.

Finally, Pastor Thielmann began his new field of activity in Thalberg, Man., which he reached in 1951.

In May 1957 he and his family came to Duncan to take over the Lutheran congregation.

Thief Sent To Oakalla

PORT ALBERNI — John Robert William Pickard, 38, was sentenced to Oakalla for 18 months after being convicted of breaking, entering and theft.

He was charged in connection with a break-in at 614 Eighth Avenue North, the residence of the priest of Holy Family Church.

Driver Nabbed On Permit Hunt

DUNCAN—A part-time employee of a Courtenay firm, closed and proceeded to the weigh-scale at Nanaimo with Island's Trailer Sale, August Abel, pleaded not guilty to a charge of having pulled a house trailer with an over-width of 21 inches on Trans-Canada Highway. He was convicted and paid a fine of $10 in police court.

Mr. Abel said he tried to obtain an overwidth permit at Courtenay Saturday, Nov. 25, but had been advised by the government official there to proceed to the weigh-scale at Parksville as his office did not have the permit forms.

He found the Parksville scale

Orange Jackets Urged on Hunt

DUNCAN—Cowichan Fish and Game Association is spearheading a campaign for brighter-colored clothes for hunters to reduce shooting accidents, officers of the group said yesterday.

The association is trying to win support from other game clubs in a bid to ask the provincial government for legislation. This would make the new type of orange fluorescent jackets mandatory for B.C. hunters.

Annual turkey shoot sponsored by the Cowichan Fish and Game Association will take place today and Sunday at the gravel pit on Fairbridge Road from 10 a.m. until dusk.

One of the highlights will be a shotgun competition for non-shooters. Signs on the Trans-Canada Highway south of Duncan will show the way to the shooting area.

The association's annual banquet was set for Feb. 2.

PORT ALBERNI — First aid ranks and took the salute removal of injured from buildings and other rescue techniques were demonstrated Thursday by graduates of the first national survival course completed in this district.

The 36 members took part in a "passing out" parade and received the congratulations of Capt. Russell Allen, commanding officer of Company D, Canadian Scottish.

CCF Foes 'Ganged Up' For Saskatchewan Win

NANAIMO — Opposition leader Robert Strachan says the Liberal, Conservative and Social Credit parties ganged up on the New Democratic Party in the Saskatchewan by-election Wednesday.

He said defeat of the NDP CCF candidate was the result of a combination of the three other groups against the party across Canada.

Under the circumstances, I think the result is hardly surprising," he said.

Maris 'Athlete of Year'

Roger Maris, whose pursuit of Babe Ruth's home run record was followed by millions of fans all over the world, yesterday was named the Associated Press male athlete of 1961.

The 27-year-old New York Yankees slugger was an overwhelming choice in balloting by 253 sportswriters and broadcasters. Named on 160 first-place ballots, he led the overall voting with 553 points.

Second was Green Bay's great halfback, Paul Hornung, with 106 points. Milwaukee Braves' outfielder Warren Spahn, 35; Ernie Davis, Syracuse University halfback, 79; and Mickey Mantle of the Yankees, 77.

Maris is the first baseball player to win the award since Ted Williams took it in 1957. Last year's winner was death-lion champion Rafer Johnson.

Maris hit 61 home runs over a 162-game schedule compared to Ruth's record of 60 in a 154-game schedule. Maris hit 58 homers in his first 154 games.

Normally reticent and unemotional, Maris was deeply moved yesterday in New York when informed he had been named winner of the AP award.

"It's got to mean a lot when they rank you ahead of every athlete in the world," he said. "There are some mighty good ones on that list."

INGEMAR JOHANSSON

said last night he may never box in the United States again, following a U.S. federal court judgment that he owes the United States $1,009,801 in back taxes. Ingemar will first talk to his lawyers, but if there is no way out he will not return to the U.S. Meanwhile, money being held for him by various promoters and sports groups are being seized by the government.

Henry Hank scored a unanimous 10-round decision over Chie Cat derwood in their middleweight bout last night in New York. Frank Thomas of Cincinnati Reds led the National League in slugging for the second straight year, collecting 333 total bases in 545 times at bat for a .611 percentage.

CHARLES COMiskey II

sold his 46 per cent of Chicago White Sox holdings to an 11-man syndicate yesterday for an estimated $3,500,000, leaving the club without a Comiskey as an owner for the first time in 60 years.

Syracuse, led by halfback Ernie Davis, plays Miami in the Liberty Bowl today and Rice plays Kansas in the Bluebonnet Bowl.

commissioner Pete Rozelle of the National Football League says owners from the rival American Football League are "distorting the truth" in saying the NFL has already signed 10 college players still eligible for bowl games.

ANDY BATHGATE

holds a five-point edge over Montreal's Claude Provost in the National Hockey League scoring race. The New York winger has 37 points on 11 goals and 26 assists.

William "Dumey" Hoy, oldest former major league ball player, died yesterday at the age of 99. He played from 1888 to 1902 with Washington Senators, Cincinnati Reds and Chicago White Sox.

Moscow radio has branded British runner Gordon Pirie "a bad sport and mudslinger" for saying Vladimir Kuts used drugs to win at the 1956 Melbourne Olympics.

AUSTRALIA has announced its Davis Cup tennis team for the challenge round against Italy Dec. 26-28. On it will be Rod Laver, Roy Emerson, Neale Fraser and Fred Stolle.

Detroit Lions have reportedly lost their second draft choice, Eddie Wilson of Arizona, to Dallas Americans and their third choice, halfback Bobby Thompson of Arizona, to Montreal Alouettes.

Dodgers Send Charlie Neal To New York

A last-minute rush to beat last night's deadline for inter-league trades, in the major baseball leagues produced a few deals, only one involving a first-line star.

In what was a bit of a surprise, the Los Angeles Dodgers disposed of Charlie Neal, their regular second baseman, and accepted the bulk of the payment from New York Mets in cash.

Going to the Dodgers, perhaps the richest club in the majors, was $100,000 in cash along with Lee Walls, an outfielder who sometimes plays in the infield. The Mets, one of two new clubs in the National League, will also receive a rookie as yet unnamed.

SURPLUS CATCHER

New York Yankees didn't get too much for Jose Gonder, a promising colored catcher who was surplus material to the world champions, who already have Elston Howard, Johnny Blanchard and Yogi Berra to do their catching.

Gonder went to the Cincinnati Reds in exchange for Marshall Bridges, a 30-year-old southpaw relief pitcher. Both players spent most of last season in the International League.

With Gonder expected to become at least a semi-regular, the Reds then swapped catcher Bob Schmidt to Washington Senators for outfielder Marty Knecht. The Senators will also get pitcher Dave Stanhouse and give up another player, as yet unnamed.

BUSY TRADES

Busiest traders of all so far, Chicago White Sox sent Andy Carey, one-time Yankee third baseman to the Philadelphia Phillies and an unnamed farm system player to Philadelphia Phillies for two unnamed minor leaguers and cash.

Kansas City Athletics grabbed three members of the Milwaukee farm team in Vancouver for pitcher Bob Shaw and infielder Lou Klimchuck. Athletics got outfielder Manny Jimenez, infielder Ed Charles and catcher Jose Arcene.

Kansas City also sent catcher Jose Paganano to San Francisco for Texas League Jose Tartabull, an outfielder.

More Ladies, Please

All golfers who mailed their applications to the Daily Colonist Boxing Day golf tournament at Uplands by Friday have had their entries accepted. The total count on Friday evening was 113 men and 22 ladies.

A few more applications from ladies will be accepted up to Monday noon, but at that time entries will close and the draw will be made. The entry of 113 men is one larger than a year ago.

They've Both Been Away Too Long

Joe Louis Back in Boxing—Direct Speech May Return

By RED SMITH

Joe Louis, who has been a rallying referee and has lent his name to a public relations outfit and various other enterprises unfamiliar to him, is matchmaker now for some people in Los Angeles who want to be fight promoters. Presumably, the people have money. It's kind of funny how many there are like that who want to be fight promoters.

Everybody says it's a dirty business and a dying business besides, although that Toronto-Philadelphia doubleheader last week out to make it amply clear that nothing can kill boxing. Anyhow, it seems to have an irresistible fascination for a lot of people who have had success in their own fields and don't need boxing, yet come crawling for an opportunity to get into it.

There was a guy around New York a few years ago who offered a fine example of this. He had made his stack manufacturing plastic toilet seats. He could afford anything he wanted but he couldn't keep people from tittering when somebody asked, "What does he do?" and somebody else said, "He's a toilet-seat tycoon." He put his money into fight promotion hoping that when the question was

There was also Jim Norris, the poor little rich boy, and there was Bill Rosenzohn, with the rumpled Ivy League shirt, and there are Roy Cohn and Tom Bolan and Bill Fugazy, who made marks in law and business but apparently weren't satisfied. There was even Cecil Rhodes Jr., the watch-charm empire builder.

It is good to see Joe Louis back where he belongs. He has been away too long. It was ten years ago that Rocky Marciano knocked him out in his last real fight. For a while after that he was around with the Norris promotions in some vaguely defined capacity but he didn't actually do anything. Since then he's had only flimsy connections with boxing, like his role as "technical adviser" to Floyd Patterson before the second match with Ingemar Johansson.

It seems longer than ten years. That's because so much has happened in the meantime, practically all of it bad.

You wouldn't think that a business which goes back to Jim Figg—no, Cain and Abel were amateurs—could change enormously in ten years, but it's going to seem very, very strange to Joe. For one thing, he'll be trying to do business with Cus D'Amato, which shouldn't happen to a guy who's already had to go through the mill with the Internal Revenue Service. Into each life some rain and all that sort of thing, but there should be limits.

JOE LOUIS
... should be limited

Ask any guy on the street what he admired most in Louis, apart from the way he could punch, and the chances are he would mention Joe's willingness to fight, anybody, anytime, anywhere, and his wonderful honest, direct habit of speech.

They asked Louis what he'd do if Billy Conn fled from him in their second fight and he said, "He can run but he can't hide." They hollered for a speech from the ring before a bout during the war and he said, "We gonna win because we're on God's side." Guys in his dressing room made clucking noises of sympathy after Marciano knocked him out and he said, "I knocked out plenty guys."

When he was a young fighter just East from Detroit, news photographers in his training camp wanted him to pose eating watermelon. He said, "No, I don't like watermelon." This may have been the only time he ever shaved the truth. He's crazy about watermelon, but he realized the benighted photographers hadn't learned that humorous pictures of young Negroes munching watermelon were out of style.

The man Louis dealt with was Mike Jacobs, and whatever else Mike may have been he was a direct man.

A fellow went up to Mike's offices to demonstrate a recording machine. As he set it in motion, a long distance call came in for Mr. Jacobs. "Say something into that," Mike told Harry Markson, his publicity man. "What? Say anything. I'll be back in a minute."

Harry Markson wasn't long out of the newspaper business then. His favorite sports writer was a man named W. Shakespeare. Groping, he came up with a quotation. "When, in disgrace with fortune and men's eyes, I all alone beweep my outcast state and trouble deaf heaven with my bootless cries and look upon myself, and curse my fate."

Just as he finished, Mike returned. They played the record back, and Mike's lip curled. "Ah, for goodness' sake," he said, a blunt man. "I heard that 30 years ago."

Canucks Relaxed for Moment That Was All Flyers Needed

Vancouver Canucks played one of their best games of the season in the Western Hockey League last night, but they relaxed for just over three minutes in the third period and it cost them a victory over Edmonton Flyers.

Trailing 2-1, Flyers scored three times in three minutes and 21 seconds to go ahead, then held on for a 4-3 victory that increased their lead to nine points in the northern division.

Defenceman Lloyd Haddon and forwards Len Lundie and Ed Joyal got the third-period goals for Flyers, and Les Hunt scored the last goal for Canucks with about nine minutes remaining.

In the early play, Canucks got a fine job from centre Ed Dorey in his return to the club he once suited. His power play goal gave them a 2-1 lead in the second period.

Gilles Boisvert, latest addition to a long line of Edmonton Flyers, but extent of the injuries was not known.

In other games last night, Portland Buckaroos beat the Seals, 4-3, in overtime at San Francisco, and Calgary Stampede played to a 2-2 overtime tie with the Totems in Seattle.

There may yet be a change in the plan to use last year's averages as a basis for handicaps in this season's city league tournament.

Rumor has it that the new executive of the city tennis association will call a meeting soon to reconsider the decision. In view of grumblings throughout the leagues.

The matter of the handicaps has been the main beef in a series of complaints about the city association meeting. Like most bowling complaints, they are being voiced over coffee at the exclusive Polish Inn rather than to the people in a position to do something about them.

But if you drink enough coffee and listen to enough howls, you get the feeling the bowlers consider themselves typified by the meeting.

Handicap Plan Not Set

The change in the ABC constitution, which has to be adopted by each association, was aimed at large cities, where membership is so great that it would be practically impossible to bring all the bowlers to one meeting to vote.

In that case, it is only sensible to let a bowler represent a league. But Victoria's association isn't anywhere near that large yet.

As a solution, why don't secretaries of every league poll their bowlers, decide how the majority of their members feel on the handicap system, and write a letter to the association with the league vote?

Maybe then the issue would be settled properly.

Triplicates in league play are rare enough, but two of them in one six-team league on the same night is a real long-shot.

Toys Monday

Shoot Today Help 500

Targets and toys will be the focal points of Colonist 500 Fund activity over the next two or three days.

The Victoria Gun Club fires its opening blast this morning in its annual campaign to help the city's needy children—and give participants some fun doing it.

Hundreds of turkeys and hams are offered as prizes to competitors and nonshooters alike. All contestants will be handicapped to give everyone an even break.

Those who just go along for the ride will find games of chance and entertainment. The fun begins at Albert

Head Grounds this morning at 9, continues until dusk and gets under way for another full day at the same time Sunday morning.

Toys take front row centre at Maynard's Auction Rooms, 731-33 Johnson, Monday night at 7:30 when hundreds of them go on sale to the highest bidder. The cash goes to the 500 Fund.

Total return to the Fund from both events last year was more than $1,000.

All Municipal Staffs Given Holiday Jan. 2

A Jan. 2 holiday for all Greater Victoria municipal employees was recommended yesterday by the intermunicipal committee.

The committee was informed federal and provincial civil servants had already been granted the additional holiday.

Mild objection was raised by Mayor Percy Scurrell who said that according to statute Victoria must hold a city council meeting on the first Monday in January, which this year is Jan. 1, or on the following day if it coincides with a statutory holiday.

Foreign Pupils Head For Holiday at Home

Students attending Victoria private schools are heading for the four corners of the earth this weekend to spend Christmas with their families in a score of countries.

Junior globetrotters from University School include Niel Fraser, who left yesterday for his home in Buenos Aires, Argentina, who took off about the same time for Berlin, and David von Dehn who heads for Palm Springs today.

WITH FAMILIES

Bruce and Gary Murdoch and Gordon Taylor will spend Christmas with their families in Whitehorse and Matt Kelly will be in San Francisco by Sunday morning.

In the girls' schools, the situation is much the same.

Families in Dawson, Cranbrook, Revelstoke, Seattle and Port Angeles will welcome students returning home from St. Ann's Academy.

REMAIN HERE

Carmen Valente and Sylvia Lavagnino, both attending the academy from San Salvador, will spend their Christmas in Victoria, as will Lupita Echavarría and Maria Rosas of Mexico.

For Christmas travelling with a difference, there's St. Ann's student Cathy Johnson—a Victoria girl heading for Christmas holidays in Mexico.

OFF TO PERU

On his way from Shawigan, Lake boys school to his home in Lima, Peru, is Don Whitham, Tommy and Kappy Pichel, Bill Wells and Bill Millmore will spend Christmas with families in San Francisco.

LIBERAL HELPING: The overwhelming success of mayor-elect Richard Bigger staff Wilson at the polls on Thursday can be attributed to the efficiency of the Liberal party machine.

For it was the Liberal brass, from beginning to end, who masterminded the new mayor's campaign.

Their aim: To have him stand as a Liberal candidate in either the next federal or provincial election.

Mr. Wilson admits he has been approached.

So far he's turned down the bids.

"I've got a full-time job now," he told us yesterday. "And I have never been a member of any political party."

But in the eyes of the Liberal brass this latter fact is not important. Last spring they had no hesitation in nominating David Gross as their candidate in the Equinox-Saanich by-election, although at the time he was still a hard-carrying member of the Progressive Conservative party.

The first caller on Mayor-elect Wilson yesterday morning was Fred McGregor, a prominent Liberal who was the power behind the throne in the election campaign waged by Robert W. Mayhew, the former Liberal cabinet minister.

The Wilson campaign was successfully fought on the premise that a mayor can't serve two masters.

If, in time, he succumbs to it, it will be interesting to watch.

NOTE: The post-election reception staged for supporters at badly beaten Don Smith Thursday evening was held in the Blue Room.

FAMILY TIME: Friend of mine met an 82-year-old acquaintance Thursday afternoon and politely inquired if she had voted yet.

Reeve Chatterton:

Don't Force Metro It'll Come Anyway

By IAN STREET

Reeve George Chatterton said yesterday the present intermunicipal committee can provide the basis for what will eventually be one government for all Greater Victoria.

But he warned against any "precipitate action" designed to force amalgamation on the municipalities without full local consent.

Mayor Percy Scurrell said the "atmosphere of co-operation" between municipalities created by the committee during the past six years has contributed to the general willingness, at least in Saanich and Victoria, to discuss amalgamation.

MEMBERS ASKED

The two veteran members of the intermunicipal committee were interviewed on the eve of their retirement. Mayor Scurrell has served six years, Reeve Chatterton five years on the joint body. Both retire from their posts Dec. 31.

Mayor Scurrell said: "Useful discussions could be held, it seems to me, between the representatives of Victoria and Saanich, with possible agreement on some form of joint government."

"It's possible, mind; I'm not saying it's going to happen," the mayor added.

Reeve Chatterton said for now he favored closer co-operation between local municipalities through an agency such as the inter-municipal committee.

"This type of thing must be allowed to grow," the reeve said. "It cannot be imposed from the top. The action must come from the municipalities."

"Once this step is taken (amalgamation) really becomes effective."

NOT FORCED

Mr. Chatterton said he didn't agree with those who say amalgamation should be "forced on us" but added the provincial government should encourage integration of local municipal services.

The reeve said he was linked by the "multiplicity" of inter-municipal organizations such as the water board, cemetery board, library board, capital region planning board, and others. He suggested the inter-municipal committee itself could adopt some of these functions.

Mayor Scurrell cited the library and water boards as "outstanding examples" of inter-municipal co-operation.

Mayor Scurrell said: "Useful discussions could be held, it seems to me, between the representatives of Victoria and Saanich, with possible agreement on some form of joint government."

"It's possible, mind; I'm not saying it's going to happen," the mayor added.

Reeve Chatterton said for now he favored closer co-operation between local municipalities through an agency such as the inter-municipal committee.

"This type of thing must be allowed to grow," the reeve said. "It cannot be imposed from the top. The action must come from the municipalities."

Two Parting Members Get Christmas Cheer

Christmas cheer in the form of a glass of sherry and fruit cake was served to members of the Greater Victoria intermunicipal committee at the end of yesterday's meeting held in Oak Bay. Toasts were drunk to the health of Mayor Percy Scurrell and Reeve George Chatterton who retire from municipal office Dec. 31.

Outside Areas Meet Centennial Planners

Heads of the three local municipalities will meet city centennial planners Monday to discuss their contribution to Victoria's 100th birthday celebrations.

Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt representatives at yesterday's intermunicipal committee meeting decided to seek the meeting immediately rather than wait until early in the new year.

Coun. Allan Cox of Oak Bay said it was time to "get down to brass tacks."

Reeve George Chatterton of Saanich said if representatives could return to their own councils with a firm idea of what is required and how much it would cost, there is a better chance approval will be forthcoming.

Ald. G. K. Sammon of Esquimalt urged something be done in the next two weeks.

He said the issue was originally brought before the intermunicipal committee in January.

Qualicum-Parksville Idea Stepping Stone to Metro?

QUALICUM BEACH — A proposal that has led to metropolitan government in other areas has been made by Donald Beaton, recently re-elected chairman of the village commission.

He suggested it could be "very beneficial" to both Parksville and Qualicum Beach councils to hold a joint meeting to discuss matters of mutual interest.

The council, said Mr. Beaton, must "get together to discuss civil defence as the two communities are linked under one grouping for this and there are undoubtedly many joint problems that could be discussed."

The wallet, containing about $40, Mrs. O'Neill's only money, remains on the missing list.

Slick Liberal Machine Wants Wilson to Run

Peter Bruton's NOTEBOOK

LIBERAL HELPING: The overwhelming success of mayor-elect Richard Bigger staff Wilson at the polls on Thursday can be attributed to the efficiency of the Liberal party machine.

For it was the Liberal brass, from beginning to end, who masterminded the new mayor's campaign.

Their aim: To have him stand as a Liberal candidate in either the next federal or provincial election.

Mr. Wilson admits he has been approached.

So far he's turned down the bids.

"I've got a full-time job now," he told us yesterday. "And I have never been a member of any political party."

But in the eyes of the Liberal brass this latter fact is not important. Last spring they had no hesitation in nominating David Gross as their candidate in the Equinox-Saanich by-election, although at the time he was still a hard-carrying member of the Progressive Conservative party.

The first caller on Mayor-elect Wilson yesterday morning was Fred McGregor, a prominent Liberal who was the power behind the throne in the election campaign waged by Robert W. Mayhew, the former Liberal cabinet minister.

The Wilson campaign was successfully fought on the premise that a mayor can't serve two masters.

If, in time, he succumbs to it, it will be interesting to watch.

Day Of Fear

By TED PULFORD

TIMMY WRIGHT is nine years old and he speaks with the irrefutable logic of the very young.

Here is his story of the first Christmas he remembers.

"I knew it was Christmas, because there was a tree and all, but that isn't why I remember it. I remember it because my Dad was drinking and falling all over and he hit my mother."

"The next day—Mom and I and the baby got out of there and we've been here ever since and Dad never comes around any more."

With Christmas, 1961, a few days away, Timmy Wright and his mother face a continuing crisis which began when the family went on city welfare two years ago and came to grips with physical want.

I asked him if he was looking forward to Christmas, and this is all he said:

"Why? I'm just afraid my Dad's going to come home." This nine-year-old's childhood dream of a Christmas brimming with love and good things and the warm knowledge that his house is truly a home, has probably been shattered beyond all mending.

For him, just as for you, Christmas time is memory time—but his are the stuff of which nightmares are made.

While nothing can be done to change Timmy Wright's impressions of past Christmases, his Christmas to come is in your hands just as surely as is your own.

Timmy and his mother will be getting a Colonist 500 cheque this year—a cheque which will mean much in the way of good food and clothes and wanted gifts for them both.

And for Timmy, perhaps, the cheque will have an extra message—one that will bring some meaning into the Christmas seasons which lie ahead.

Think of him when you reach for your cheque book. Donations may be mailed or brought to The Daily Colonist, 2631 Douglas, or dropped off at Acousticon of Victoria, 740 Yates, between 9 and 5 weekdays or from 9 to 3 on Saturday.

KEENLEYSIDE:

Export Ban A Fantasy

Power Flowing South for Years

—Hydro Chief

By TERRY HAMMOND

In his maiden policy speech since his appointment 2½ years ago as B.C. Hydro chairman, Dr. Hugh Keenleyside yesterday launched a scathing attack on Canada's no-power-export policy and challenged its existence.

Addressing a Nanaimo service club he said that the basic reason behind the controversial policy over which Premier Bennett has locked horns with the federal government is outdated and probably not even valid.

He said the policy dates back to the First World War when Canada encountered difficulty recapturing power which had been sold to the U.S. for periods of 45 to 80 years. The terms under which the power was sold embodied no provision for its return before the full maturity date of the agreements.

PROVIDE ASSURANCES

"I suggest that the situation (now) is almost completely different," he stated.

New agreement would be for 15 to 25 years and "will provide specific assurances the power can be repatriated at the end of the contract term."

But Dr. Keenleyside went on to point out that the no-export policy which has been the major cause of Columbia Peace River controversy does not really exist.

"It is worth observing," he said, "that the frequently repeated statement that the Canadian government is adamantly opposed to energy export is not, and never has been, true in practice. Now, and for a long time past we have been exporting power to the U.S."

"During 1960 the net export of energy to the United States amounted to 5.14 billion k.w.h. of which about 25 per cent was firm power."

14 EXPORTERS

"There are presently 14 agencies in Canada with licences to export electricity to the United States."

He said he knows of no other country in which power exports are prohibited on principle.

"Surely a policy that is everywhere else accepted as beneficial cannot reasonably be considered detrimental to Canada."

TEMPORARY SALE

"How can any rational observer accept the logic of a national energy policy that permits the sale abroad of our non-renewable resources of oil."

Luthuli Silenced

DURBAN, South Africa (Reuters)—Former Zulu chief Albert Luthuli, winner of the 1960 Nobel Peace Prize, arrived home last night from Oslo and received a rousing welcome from 1,000 Negroes.

Shortly after he stepped out of the plane with his wife police spoke to him for several minutes, then he walked straight to his car without speaking to anyone amid roars from the crowd and singing and dancing.

Mink at $28 —No Takers

ATLANTA (UPI)—A $3,500 mink coat was offered for sale at $28 in a small pawnshop this week—without takers. The pawnbroker, not realizing the value of the coat, said he bought it for $18 from a boy and girl whom police charged with stealing it from the back of a truck.

Fog Chokes London, Vanishes

LONDON (Reuters)—A thick winter fog blanketed London Friday but suddenly lifted in a surprising weather change.

The British Automobile Association describes it as "the most remarkable weather change we have ever known."

Within a half-hour reports of dense fog from 38 centres in central London changed to "all clear." The association called it a "fly-away fog."

India Prepared Showdown In Goa

BELGAUM, India (Reuters)—Indian forces stepped up border manoeuvres yesterday for what appeared to be an imminent showdown with Portugal over the Portuguese enclave of Goa.

The military preparations went ahead as U.S. Ambassador John Galbraith called on Indian Prime Minister Nehru in New Delhi in an attempt to head off the threatened war.

One report said Indian forces would invade Goa within 48 hours.

Military observers believe an invasion would be a pushover for India which has 30,000 troops ready for action. They claimed the Indian force could overrun the 1,300-square-mile territory in a matter of days, if not hours.

Market Crisis 'Old History'

TORONTO (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker last night likened Britain's proposals to join the European Common Market to a situation that "threatened to destroy the economy of British North America 20 years before Confederation."

Recalling the situation more than a century ago, the prime minister said that, when Britain withdrew "what were then called 'colonial' but would now be called 'Commonwealth' preferences," Canada entered into a reciprocal trade agreement with the United States for 10 years and "a clamor followed for full commercial union, even annexation, with the United States."

"The answer to that challenge... was the creation of a new nation."

He added similar principles should be applied now and drew applause with the declaration Canada will be guided by the idea of "partnership with the nations of the Commonwealth."

BIG UN PUSH NEAR VICTORY

ELISABETHVILLE (AP)—Relentlessly rolling up spectacular gains, troops of the United Nations fought their way toward the heart of Elisabethville Friday in a drive for control of this capital of secessionist Katanga province.

"This looks like the big UN push," said a longtime Belgian resident in comment on the climactic military phase. "The next few days will settle the fate of Katanga."

Thant:

Truce Bids Vetoed

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Acting Secretary-General Thant sent a blunt reply Friday night to two French-allied African countries which called for a cease-fire in the Congo's secessionist Katanga province.

Thant said the United Nations would stop its military action against Katanga troops only if guaranteed that it could carry out all of its Congo resolutions "to the satisfaction of the Security Council and the General Assembly."

UP TO CHIEF

The United States, faced with a cease-fire mediation request from President Moise Tshombe of Katanga, said earlier the question of a cessation of hostilities was one for the secretary-general to decide.

TRUCE PLEA

Abbe Fulbert Youlou, president of the Congo Republic (Brazzaville), which adjoins the Congo (Leopoldville), cabled a plea to Thant to issue instructions for an immediate ceasefire in Katanga.

Reports told of hundreds of wounded streaming to city hospitals and more than a score of dead.

The offensive was kicked off from the northern outskirts.

In Kitwe, Northern Rhodesia, Prime Minister Sir Roy Welensky of the Rhodesian Federation said President Moise Tshombe of Katanga "could come here without any question" if the province falls to the UN forces.

DENIED SUPPLIES

Welensky, a strong Tshombe supporter whose federation borders Katanga, denied his government is supplying arms to Tshombe forces.

Reuters reported that Tshombe issued a communique Friday night putting forth a proposal for a Congolese union along the lines of his long-standing proposal for a federation of the Congo's provinces.

Tshombe also offered to meet with Cyrille Adoula, premier of the Congo's central government, but only on neutral ground. He suggested one of the former French African states.

MONETARY UNION

In the communique Tshombe proposed a Congolese customs and monetary union with common defence and foreign policies.

On the subject of a cease-fire, he said that should one be arranged it would have to be on the basis of the present positions held by Katangan and United Nations troops.

Earlier, Tshombe's finance

French Fail to Balk East-West Talks

Many Red Designs 'As Bad as Berlin'

PARIS (UPI)—The U.S. and Britain last night won backing from their NATO allies to resume diplomatic contacts with the Russians, but only after a final session in which France dissented strongly.

Delegates attending the last session in the North Atlantic council's three-day meeting said French Foreign Minister Couve de Murville found himself alone in his opposition to talks with Russia on Berlin.

HOPE EXPRESSED

The other 14 nations supported the efforts "in the hope a negotiated settlement could be achieved."

The closing communique skirted the disagreement but stressed the Russian threat to peace over Berlin. Western counter-measures and the theme that "world peace cannot indefinitely rest on a precarious balance of mutual terror."

RUSK REVIEW

Earlier, U.S. Secretary of State Rusk told the foreign, finance and defence ministers of the 15 nations Communist designs on the Middle East, Southeast Asia and Latin America may be as dangerous as the threat in Berlin.

He did not deal specifically with Berlin but presented the council a sweeping review of world conditions.

He said the U.S. is taking steps to liberalize its trade

Dox Sniffs Under Rocks For Peace Pipe Plans

VANCOUVER (CP)—Dox, an RCMP tracking dog, led police Friday night to a briefcase containing plans for the Westcoast Transmission Peace River pipeline project.

The briefcase had been stolen from engineer Peter Robinson's car. He said the plans were the only copies in existence and their loss would have delayed the project.

RCMP set Dox to work and she led them straight to the briefcase under a pile of rocks. The contents were intact.

Pigs May Slim Humans

LONDON (AP)—British scientists said Friday they may have discovered a new way to lose weight. They think they have found a new hormone in pigs which operates on the pituitary gland to burn up fat.

The government-backed National Research Council—convinced that the project looks promising—has contributed $11,200 toward further research.

The gland is reported to produce a substance which controls the rate at which food is burned up by the body. When extra doses of the hormone are injected into the body, the body burns up surplus fat as well as a normal food supply.

Biochemist Dr. Ivor Smith has headed the experiment. "The research is at a very early stage," he said in an interview, "and we are not trying to produce a magic slimming cure. But, it is possible that we may eventually be able to help some people who, because of some physical abnormality, are very much overweight."

Scientists at London's Middlesex Hospital have been extracting small amounts of the hormone from pigs and injecting it into mice. They discovered that the mice lost 10 per cent of their original weight in two weeks.
